'Sen. Bridges Urges Stiffer Russian Policy

SOLON CHARGES ANTI-AMERICAN DRIVE STARTED

Marshall Reported Planning To Ask Restatement Of Potsdam Agreement

By International News Service
Washington spotlight switched to capitol hill today where Sen. Bridges (R) N. H., called for a stiffening of America's back against Russia to combat what he said was "an anti-American drive sparked by Moscow."

Bridges, chairman of the senate appropriations committee, charged that the five pending treaties merely have "confirmed" Russian domination in Europe while the USSR in China has "broken its promises" and treats that country like a "conquered nation."

The senator's attack on Russia was made in a statement in which he declared that:

1. A formal inspection of atomic bomb production would be inadequate in "a police state like Russia." 2. Russia aims to turn Germany into a "satellite and ally." 3. Despite claimed "concessions," Russia has "given up nothing essential." 4. Former Secretary of State Byrnes "inherited a sorry mess of appeasement and political muddling" but was well-started on restoration of confidence in American leadership when he resigned.

The Bridges statement came as Secretary of State Marshall was reported planning to ask a complete restatement of the Potsdam agreement when he attends the "big four" foreign ministers meeting in Moscow next March.

Marshall, who received the confidence of Bridges, was said to be supported by President Truman and other high officials who are dissatisfied with Russian compliance with commitments made at the Potsdam conference after the end of the European war.

The major points of dissatisfaction were said to be the inability to obtain an arrangement whereby Germany would be treated as an economic whole; reviving U. S. Soviet talks on Korea which broke down when the Russians withdrew, and the recent Polish elections.

On the domestic side, house Republicans apparently were committed to a graduated personal income tax reduction program today. (Continued on Page Two)

Cleveland Hit As Storms Ravage Middle West

FLOOD WATERS swirl across Cleveland's Euclid avenue as a crazy-quilt of storms played havoc across the midwestern states.

MUCH COLDER WEATHER DUE

Lowest Marks Of Year May Follow Storms Which Swept Over Ohio

By International News Service
It was snowing and much colder over most of Ohio today after a hodge-podge of weather conditions brought much distress and damage to scattered sections of the state.

The edge of a northwestern cold wave conflicting with a warm air mass from the south was blamed for sleet and rain storms which tore down power lines and disrupted telephone service in many places.

Forecasters said the weather now has settled down toward a cold spell that will extend through Monday, with probably the sharpest drop in temperatures coming Sunday morning.

The heavy rainfall through yesterday closed many highways as swollen streams raced over their banks.

The sleet and ice storm in northwestern Ohio yesterday was reported as the worst in 25 years. In the Bryan area alone, 1,000 utility poles were uprooted by the storm. Many homes still were without electricity today.

Damage estimated at $25,000 resulted in Springfield where a 50-mile-an-hour wind struck with terrific force, damaging homes and factories. Some 6,000 persons were idled there due to industrial damage.

The heavy downpours ranged from fractions of an inch to 1.42 inches at Cleveland.

After hitting near-record highs again yesterday, the mercury this morning was below freezing over the entire state. Temperatures at Cincinnati and Chesapeake skidded. (Continued on Page Two)

LILIENTHAL IS ATTACKED BY FORMER TVA FOE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31—David Lilienthal, chairman of the atomic commission, was accused today of believing in "government of men and not of laws—like Mr. Stalin of Russia."

The charge was made by Lilienthal's old Tennessee valley foe—Sen. McKellar (D) Tenn., in a hearing by atomic committee senators on Lilienthal's appointment to head the nation's nuclear energy program.

McKellar read from a magazine article written by Lilienthal, former TVA chairman, in 1925 in which Lilienthal was quoted:

"Our government and every government must be a government of men and not of laws." McKellar then demanded:

"If that is correct where is there any difference between that and the political views of Mr. Stalin of Russia."

MacArthur Bans Strike By Japanese

TOKYO, Jan. 31—General MacArthur called an official halt today to plans for a general strike by two and one-half million Japanese government leaders.

Strike leaders were at first determined to defy the Allied supreme commander, but later capitulated and cancelled the mass walkout.

The strike had been called for midnight tonight as a protest against the Yoshida government.

Strike committee chairman Yoshihiro II was summoned to Allied occupation headquarters to receive directly the word that MacArthur would not permit the strike.

The strike committee had quibbled over whether MacArthur's statement to newsmen announcing the ban constituted an "official" (Continued on Page Two)

FATHER'S LAST WISH GRANTED; SON NAMED PAGE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31—Politicians do have a heart!

And because they do a 15-year-old orphan boy, James W. Richardson Jr., Ironton, will become a house page tomorrow—the answer to a father's dying request.

Rep. Jenkins (R) Ohio, related yesterday to a house which suddenly became quiet the "sad and true story" of a world war veteran's last wish that his motherless boy be appointed a house page so he would have someone to look after him.

Jenkins told the house: "This boy's father, a World War I veteran from my home town, came to me and said he was going to the hospital again for treatment. When I saw him I didn't think he'd come back. He didn't. His last wish was that his boy be named a page and that someone keep an eye on him."

Jenkins conferred with Rep. Allen (R) Ill., chairman of the house patronage committee, who immediately arranged the boy's appointment. The Ohioan will act as his sponsor.

Jenkins' office said the boy's father, a Navy yard worker, died Monday of a heart attack at Bethesda naval hospital and was buried yesterday in Arlington cemetery.

With the money he will receive as a page, young Richardson will be able to continue his schooling in Washington.

OSU ASKED TO WAIT
COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 31—Ohio State University board of trustees was asked today to defer the appointment of a dean of the university's college of agriculture. An 11-man committee representing independent agriculture interests in the state is opposing the proposed selection of Leo L. Rummel, Cincinnati, for the post.

MILLER SEEKS MAYOR'S POST

City Safety Director Makes Formal Announcement He Will Be Candidate

Thurman I. Miller, Circleville safety director, Friday announced formally his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for mayor at the May 6 primary election.

Circulation of petitions on behalf of Miller was in progress Friday. Mayor Ben H. Gordon announced that he is not a candidate for re-election.

Miller, who is widely known in Masonic circles, was appointed safety director by Mayor Gordon in February, 1945. Miller is 46 years old. He was born in Circleville, attended local schools, and in 1926 he established a radio shop which he has since operated. The post of safety director is the only political job he has held. His friends claim he has done an excellent job in the city's service. He is the first to announce his candidacy for mayor.

It was reported Friday that others who will compete for the mayoralty nominations include Ernie W. Weiler, Democrat; Joseph E. Brink, Democrat; and James Wickenseimer, Republican.

City Solicitor George E. Gerhardt said he will run for re-election.

Most of the seven members of the city council are expected to seek re-election although none has yet made formal announcement. Wednesday night is the deadline for filing the nominating petitions with the Pickaway county board of elections.

450 EMPLOYEES OF STATE BUC TO BE LAID OFF
COLUMBUS, Jan. 31—The Ohio bureau of unemployment compensation confirmed an International News Service report today that 450 employees will be laid off because of federal budget cuts.

The employees to be dropped from the payroll constitute more than one-half of the staff that the BUC claims is necessary to handle adequately the processing of claims and other BUC activities.

An official BUC statement said the layoffs will be effective Feb. 7.

The state bureau immediately ordered local offices to institute an emergency plan of bi-weekly reports and payments. Spokesmen pointed out this meant that claimants will be paid every two weeks instead of weekly as at present.

Employees in the employment service division of the BUC are unaffected by the payroll reduction since that service was recently turned back to the states from federal control.

On January 1 the unemployment compensation branch employed 1,675 workers and the employment service 1,217.

SOLONS OFFER 5-POINT PLAN FOR U. S. OIL

Special Petroleum Group Reports Russia Has Greater Supplies

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31—The senate special petroleum committee today advanced a five-point program to sustain dwindling U. S. oil supplies in the face of a great Russian petroleum potential. The committee filed an exhaustive report covering its activities since its inception in March, 1944. The recommended program called for:

1. Legislation to stimulate oil exploration and development in the United States, as well as encouragement of conservation.
2. Government promotion of research into synthetic fuels without competition with private industry.
3. Tax reforms "to restore the incentives for the risk of private capital in new ventures."
4. Disclosure to the government of the terms, conditions and obligations by which American companies undertake to carry on the petroleum industry abroad.
5. "A foreign policy designed to promote full development of the petroleum resources of the whole world for the benefit of all the people of the world."

The report stated that American oil discoveries had decreased in size and importance, while foreign discoveries had multiplied. It said:

"The best evidence available at the moment would indicate that the land area of Russia is a greater potential source of petroleum than continental United States." The committee reported that while less than one-third of the (Continued on Page Two)

DEATH CLAIMS NOAH WARNER

Retired Grocer, 94, Dies At Home After Illness Of One Month

Noah A. Warner, 94, retired Circleville grocer and one of the oldest residents of Pickaway county, died at 11:30 a. m. Friday in his home at 202 East Main street. He had been ill for about one month and death was attributed to infirmities of age. He was a life-long resident of the community.

Mr. Warner was born Jan. 21, 1853 in Washington township, the son of Andrew and Julia Warner. He was married Dec. 29, 1881 to Flora E. Morris. For many years he was active in Methodist church affairs and held various offices in the Methodist Episcopal church.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Flora E. Warner; one son, M. E. Warner, Detroit, Mich.; one brother, William H. Warner, Circleville; and 3 grandchildren and 8 great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2 p. m., Monday, at the residence. The Rev. C. A. Thomas will officiate. Burial will be in Forest cemetery. It is requested that flowers be omitted.

The body will be removed from the Mader chapel to the residence Sunday morning. Friends may call at the Mader chapel Saturday and at the home Sunday.

FCC APPROVES RADIO PERMIT FOR SNOWPLOWS

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 31—Ohio had authorization today to set up a radio communications system for use on its snow plows.

The state had asked the federal communications commission for permission to install the system in the northern part of the state as a means of keeping the highways clear of snow. The FCC granted the permit for construction of stations at Ashtabula and Ravenna, plus one mobile station.

This is the first authorization ever granted by the FCC for such a purpose.

Argue Mt. Clemens Portal Case

JOHN F. SONNETT, left, assistant U. S. attorney general, and August Schoole, president of the Michigan CIO council, appear at Detroit federal court where Judge Frank Picard is hearing arguments on the trail-blazing Mt. Clemens pottery suit which set the pattern for portal suits that now total five billion dollars.

Evacuation Order Causes Sensations In London

LONDON, Jan. 31—A sensation unparalleled since war days was created in London today with announcement that Great Britain has ordered evacuation of women and children, along with other "non-essential persons" from Palestine.

Winston Churchill branded the move as "the road to abject defeat and shame" and called upon the United States to share Britain's burdens in the Holy Land under auspices of the United Nations.

With all British women and children ordered out of the Holy Land by Tuesday next aboard ships dispatched by the admiralty for this express purpose, London was deluged with sensational headlines.

There were official announcements of all the drastic measures taken, and there was debate in the house of commons.

Col. Oliver Stanley warned that Britain must handle the situation with a firm hand or see Palestine turned into a "bloody hell for Briton, Jew and Arab alike."

Churchill followed his conservative team-mate with a bitter criticism of Prime Minister Clement Attlee's government for its action in granting reprieves to Jewish extremists whose conviction had resulted in anti-British measures that included kidnapping of two prominent residents.

Churchill said: "This is the road to abject defeat and shame . . .

"We have broken our pledges to the Jews . . .

"Finding ourselves incapable of carrying out our promises, we

ENGINEER GETS BLAME FOR OHIO TRAIN DISASTER

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31—The interstate commerce commission today blamed a freight train engineer's failure to observe signals for the wreck of the Pennsylvania's crack Golden Triangle at Mansfield, Ohio, Dec. 15 in which 19 persons were killed and 139 injured.

The ICC reported that the rail disaster was caused by "failure to operate the 'following' freight train in accordance with signal indications."

A freight of which Louis Petoskey, 55, Toledo, was engineer, crashed into another freight train which had halted on the main line near Mansfield because of a broken air hose.

A few minutes later the west-bound Golden Triangle, roaring along at a speed of 70 miles an hour, thundered into the second freight.

Many of the dead and injured were soldiers bound from eastern stations to their homes in the Middle West for Christmas furloughs.

At the time of the crash Petoskey denied he had failed to obey "slow down" signals, asserting that "I had clear signals all the way."

BRITISH WOMEN AND CHILDREN TO LEAVE AREA

BITTER SIEGE INDICATED

Americans Advised To Make Plans To Leave; Consul Seeks Instructions

JERUSALEM, Jan. 31—All women and children of 2,000 British families along with other "non-essential" civilians were ordered out of Palestine today in a move indicating Great Britain intends to dig in for a bitter siege in the Holy Land.

In a move that Winston Churchill in London decried as "the road to abject defeat and shame," British High Commissioner Sir Alan Cunningham announced the evacuation must be completed by next Tuesday aboard ships provided by the admiralty.

At present, the order affects only British citizens.

But Americans residing in Palestine were advised to contact their consulates as soon as possible. The United States consul-general in Jerusalem has called the state department in Washington for instructions.

London dispatches said the British admiralty has announced that the evacuation will be completed by Tuesday under orders of Admiral Sir Algonson Willis. He is commander-in-chief of the British Mediterranean fleet.

(The London Evening Standard reported in a Jerusalem dispatch that Americans have been instructed to report to the United States consulate.)

The consensus interpretation of the evacuation measure is that it was prepared because of the "unpopular" policy decisions to be announced because of the expected imminent failure of the London talks on Palestine.

The evacuation measure was announced by British High Commissioner Sir Alan Cunningham.

2,000 Families Affected
An estimated 2,000 families were affected by his order.

Cunningham likewise advised British news correspondents to leave the Holy Land or remain at their own risk.

In the midst of these energetic preparations the American consulate cabled Washington for an interpretation of the United States position.

The order stated that the women and children—"and certain other British civilians"—will be evacuated "so the government armed forces 'shall not be hampered in their task of maintaining order.'"

Well-informed quarters said the evacuation will begin on next Tuesday, February 4.

JUDGE PICARD CALLS CONFAB ON PORTAL PAY

DETROIT, Jan. 31—Federal Judge Frank A. Picard adjourned the public hearing on the Mt. Clemens case shortly after noon today and called principals to his chambers in an attempt to establish agreement on "basic facts" in the historic portal pay suit.

Obviously irritated by quibbling of opposing counsel on such purely factual matters as walking time in the plant and time spent preliminary to the work day, the judge announced that he will give the attorneys one more chance to reach agreement.

He said that if no agreement is reached 30 days of testimony will be required to establish the simple facts in the case.

The judge indicated that he will also attempt to establish in the private conference a definition of the de minimis acceptable to both sides and whether the de minimis doctrine is applicable in the Mt. Clemens case.

The issue is whether the time involved in the case, which set the pattern for similar actions totaling nearly five billion dollars, is too trivial to be computed "in the realities of industrial life." It has become "the five billion dollar question."

ONE MAN'S OPINION

By Walter Kiernan

The Republicans have become as noisy about tax cuts as a toothless man eating wet sponge cake.

Under the Democrats we worked three days a week for the treasury and so far the new management has done nothing to change our heirs.

The Democrats once promised a 25 per cent cut, the Republicans promised a 20 per cent cut; everybody promises cuts and we always wind up with bruises.

Government has a boyish aversion to having its allowance cut and unfortunately has many sympathizers for a different reason.

Those are the people who don't care where the money goes so long as it is taken away from someone who has more than they have.

They are for high taxes like the maid who was for single-blessedness until she found a husband.

There is nothing wrong with their viewpoint that a million dollars wouldn't cure if they could latch onto it.

HITLER'S PHOTOGRAPHER GETS 10-YEAR SENTENCE

MUNICH, Jan. 31—Heinrich Hoffman, Hitler's personal photographer, was sentenced today to 10 years at hard labor by a German denazification court.

The court also ordered the 63-year-old Hoffman stripped of his personal fortune, estimated at nine million marks.

erred to move into Allenby barracks by 5 o'clock this afternoon.

Such a move had been predicted earlier in the week, following the kidnapping of banker H. A. I. Collins at Jerusalem and Judge Ralph Windham at Tel Aviv by members of the Jewish underground.

The two Britons were held as hostages against the execution of Dov Gruner, 33-year-old member of Irgun Zvai Leumi, who had been sentenced to death for participating in an armed attack on a police station.

Gruner's reprieve was followed by release of the two prominent Britishers, but not before authorities threatened martial law. The threat was removed yesterday during a search for the captors of Collins, who was treated "badly."

comes in with us on a 50-50 basis to shoulder an agreed policy, then we should lay our mandate at the feet of the United Nations."

Disclosure that Sir Alan Cunningham, high commissioner for Palestine, had ordered evacuation of women and children together with other "non-essential persons" which included correspondents and even clergymen led to a tornado of speculation.

Moshe Shertok, speaking on behalf of the Jewish agency, said: "It is a great shock. It is drastic action. The reason is not known."

MUCH COLDER WEATHER DUE

from highs of 69 yesterday afternoon to 31 and 32 degrees, respectively, this morning.

Forecasters said that light snow would continue falling through today, letting up through the night. More snow was forecast to begin falling tomorrow afternoon.

The weatherman said that two storms were to affect this area before any relief can be expected. The initial one was already here while the second one was pushing behind it. The second onslaught may rush the mercury to the lowest point of the season so far, forecasters said.

The state department of highways reported the following roads closed due to high water:

Route 18 in Lorain county, east of Wellington; 53 west of Upper Sandusky; 69 between 224 and 12; 82 in Lorain county at Columbia; 97 at Richland in Richland county, between Butler and Bellevue; 103 in Wyandot county, between 23 and 53; 134 in Highland county at Buford;

146 in Guernsey county from junction of Route 21 to Cumberland City; 294 between 23 and 53; 302 in Ashland county from Red-haw to Wayne county line; 328 northeast of McArthur; 545 in Richland county north and south of Mansfield; 66 in Perry county north of route 204, and route 677 between route 50 and Zaleski.

A new cold wave moved into the Middle West today in the wake of storms across the nation which caused the death of at least 25 persons and injured hundreds of others.

Property damage was estimated at thousands of dollars.

Tornadoes ripped communities in three southern states yesterday, after striking earlier in Missouri and Arkansas. An estimated 14 persons were killed by the tornadoes and at least 60 were injured.

The hardest hit city in the Middle West was Milwaukee, Wis., where traffic was paralyzed by 17 inches of drifting snow. Four deaths there were ascribed to the storm and two other persons lost their lives elsewhere in Wisconsin.

An early death toll of eight from tornadoes was increased when the destructive winds whipped across two counties in western Tennessee and also struck communities in Alabama and Georgia.

Two were dead and 14 injured in the Tallapoosa area of Alabama. Thirty-seven houses were wrecked. In Evergreen, Ala., three were dead and 25 injured. Most of the town was flattened and searchers were still seeking victims.

In Crockett county, Tenn., one person was dead and an undisclosed number injured.

Seven fatalities in Michigan were attributed to the weather. The coldest weather ever recorded in North America—78.7 below zero—was listed in Snag, Yukon territory, as one feature of yesterday's bad weather.

to us but it must be in anticipation of some trouble."

Stanley, who was secretary of state for the colonies in the Churchill cabinet, charged the labor government with weakness in handling the turbulent situation in Palestine.

He said Prime Minister Clement Attlee's government has no definite policy, and added that "unless they can initiate a firm one and prevent further 'humiliations,' the British had better 'clear out.'"

Warning that quitting Palestine and admitting inability to carry out the mandate there would "be a signal for a bloody civil war," the conservative leader foresaw "consequences" if Britain does not tackle the situation.

Stanley added:

"Under the present circumstances, the British troops do not know who their enemies are, or where they are.

Debate on the Palestine problem was begun on the request yesterday of former Prime Minister Winston Churchill who asked for discussion on the "grave outrages" in the Holy Land.

"Certain other British civilians" are to be removed from Palestine, and observers in London said the evacuation of non-essential civilians was framed during high commission Sir Alan Cunningham's recent visit to London.

It was designed as the "ace-in-the-hole" should the Palestine situation get out of hand.

Well-informed quarters said instructions were that the evacuation order was to be withheld as long as possible, particularly if a peaceable solution appeared imminent.

SOLON CHARGES ANTI-AMERICAN DRIVE STARTED

after Speaker Martin disowned proposed "across-the-board" reductions previously endorsed by the GOP leadership.

Martin announced that Republicans still were committed to an "overall" 20 percent tax cut as well as a balanced budget and payments on the national debt.

But he said that the 20 percent reduction for each taxpayer, regardless of earnings, was "not a party commitment."

Senate Republicans were not affected by the changed GOP goal, but Sen. George (D) Ga., ranking minority member of the senate finance committee, opposed either an "across-the-board" reduction or an alternative increase in personal tax exemptions.

George said that if any income tax cuts are possible this year he favored a graduated reduction in rates, giving persons in the lower brackets the biggest benefit.

Tobey Blames White House

Sen. Tobey (R) N. H., meanwhile hinted that he believed the White House was responsible for the abortive 10 percent rent ceiling increase as well as for its revocation.

The senate banking committee chairman's statement came as the group prepared to delve into the mystery of who ordered the office of temporary controls to prepare a public announcement of the blanket rent boost which was stopped at the last minute by President Truman.

Tobey said it was "inconceivable to me that the office of temporary controls would have gone as far as it did without a green light from someone in authority."

There were indications that Mr. Truman plans to discuss the rent situation at his cabinet meeting today. The federal works agency revealed that OIC Administrator Fleming was hurrying back from Iowa to attend the meeting.

A FWA spokesman said that Fleming probably also would be available to testify before Tobey's committee today.

It also was reported on Capitol Hill that war assets administrator Robert M. Littlejohn is expected to sell the government's big and little inch pipelines for the transmission of both petroleum and natural gas.

MacArthur's order was issued a scant 10 hours before the mass walkout was to get under way. The strike would paralyze railroads, telegraphic communications, electric power plants and other vital utilities which the government operates.

Before MacArthur stepped in with his directive, labor leaders said they were under "pressure" from occupation officials to call off the proposed strike.

a month to possibly almost two months.

Coming hard on the heels of the disclosure of Russia's request for military bases and mutual sovereignty in Spitsbergen, the Greenland problem becomes a delicate issue for Norway.

In both cases it must adopt a stand for or against either power establishing military bases (in the case of Greenland, U. S. bases from the war period still exist).

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31—State department officials expressed surprise today at reports from Copenhagen that the Danish government plans a secret conference with Norway to settle the question of sovereignty over Greenland.

Responsible officials said that they had no word on this subject and had assumed that the decision of the international court at The Hague in 1933 had fully settled the question of sovereignty in Greenland.

During the past ten years, the report continued, discoveries of new fields in the United States have decreased in size and importance, average discoveries scarcely exceeding two million barrels of recoverable oil.

Comparatively, 300 fields discovered abroad in the 20 years preceding 1943 showed an average ultimate yield of about 100 million barrels each.

JULIAN WILL BE ARRAIGNED ON SATURDAY

Others Indicted By Grand Jury To Face Judge Here Saturday

Harvey B. Julian, 26, indicted on a first degree murder charge in the slaying of his divorced wife, Mrs. Pearl Eileen Julian, 20, is scheduled for arraignment at 10 a. m. Saturday before Judge William D. Radcliff in Pickaway county common pleas court.

Several others also indicted by the grand jury which held a one-day session Tuesday will be arraigned Saturday morning.

An unusually large number of spectators is expected to be present because of the appearance of Julian in court.

Sheriff Charles Radcliff disclosed that Julian has not conferred with an attorney since he has been confined in the jail. The fatal bludgeoning and shooting of Mrs. Julian occurred Jan. 21 just three weeks after she had obtained a divorce. Following the slaying Julian surrendered to the sheriff and, according to Sheriff Radcliff and County Prosecutor Kenneth Roberts, Julian signed a confession of the killing.

It is deemed probable that Judge Radcliff will appoint a lawyer to defend Julian and it is also considered likely that the court will be asked to order Julian sent to the Lima State Hospital for the Criminal Insane for a period of observation.

PUBLIC HEALTH DISCUSSED AT ROTARY MEETING

Importance of safeguarding public health was emphasized by Dr. P. L. Harris, of the state health department, in an address to members of the Cincinnati Rotary club following a noon luncheon, Thursday, at the Pickaway Arms.

Dr. Harris said health departments seek to prevent and control disease, check sanitation, and protect the health of school children. He added that Ohio spends 78 cents per capita annually for health control. The speaker asserted that pasteurized milk is the only "safe" milk.

It was announced that Paul Harris, who founded Rotary in 1905, died a few days ago, and that more than 5,000 Rotary clubs are now in existence.

Dream Comes True For Little English Woman

BY GEORGE L. SCOTT
INS Staff Correspondent

SALEM, Ore., Jan. 31—Mrs. Agnes Boyd looked out the window of her brother's house in Salem today, agreed the Oregon country was lovely but said she still was lonesome for England.

Mrs. Boyd, 64, is in the Pacific Northwest on a 20,000-mile dream holiday paid for by the money she managed to save from almost a lifetime as a charwoman.

She up and left her nine children and 25 grandchildren to their own devices and embarked on her three-months vacation.

"It's a dream come true," said the perky little woman. "All me life I thought such things were idle dreams. Then I just got a notion, I'd worked hard all me life. I'd saved a little. And the children said:

"Go to it, mother."

"So I did."

Mrs. Boyd visited her two sisters in San Francisco, Mrs. Elizabeth McDowell and Mrs. Florence Farrell, where she "had a time of it."

"I've been spoiled," she confessed, "Very spoiled. I've been treated like a lady by everyone. And I will miss those washing machines, toasters and electric sewing machines."

"It seems that everyone has everything. Only the rich have such things in England. But I won't say too much," she said with twinkling eyes. "I've got to go back and live there."

"They'll say: 'Don't be comin' back with that Yankee style...'"

Yes, Mrs. Boyd likes it here, but there's something about Birkhead on the Mersey back in England.

"Coming to the Northwest has made me a bit homesick," she said. "It rains so nicely."

She daubed at her nose with her handkerchief and apologized for the flu... same as in England—"I've been sniffing for two days."

Mrs. Boyd said she would be leaving Oregon and her brother, Owen Donnelly, within a week to head back across country. She will board the Queen Elizabeth for home on about Feb. 22.

"After we land and ride up to Liverpool," she said nostalgically, "and then we'll catch the ferry over the Mersey to Birkenhead and I'll be home."

"They all joked about what I'd bring back. Butter, nylons or a man with money. Me comin' home a bride at 64!"

"But it won't be any of those things. Just a wonderful time and a memory of a dream come true."

It takes 11 pounds of coal to haul each ton of freight 100 miles.

UN GROUPS TO STUDY ALBANIA, OTHER ISSUES

U. S. Atom Control Policy Is Discussed With Other Delegates

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., Jan. 31—The security council and four United Nations commissioners are meeting today to consider international problems ranging from human rights and social aspects to charges against Albania on the Corfu channel mining incident. At the same time, United States atomic control policy and its relationship to general disarmament is undergoing a thorough diplomatic canvassing through informal talks initiated by Warren R. Austin, principal American delegate. Austin is planning to combine his conclusions from the talks into a general statement to the council next Tuesday and with that purpose in mind has been closely consulting with his American delegation advisors in New York. He will resume attendance of the council this afternoon.

The prospects of starting actual hearings on the Albanian case at 3 p. m. today are remote. There is some likelihood that the government of Premier Enver Hoxha will have given the specific date of arrival of its envoy but in any case another delay to at least next Monday is anticipated after a brief session.

In the meantime, the human rights commission under the chairmanship of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt is pushing forward in the slow and tedious task of accomplishing initial spadework for an international bill of rights. The heavy agenda facing that commission already has compelled a Saturday session.

The economic and the social commissions as well as the statistical are busy formulating recommendations for the general meeting on Feb. 28 of the social and economic council.

United Nations officials, sizing up the international horizon are awaiting the appearance of several more controversial issues on the agenda of the security council. The United States is expected to present its claim to the strategic trusteeship of the former Jap-mandated islands, a problem sure to draw fire from Russia.

Egypt is preparing an appeal to the council against Britain on the contention that the 1936 treaty has been violated. Under this treaty, British troops occupy the Suez canal zone and the 1899 agreement gives Britain a share in the administration of the Sudan. Egypt will claim this treaty is now in contradiction to provisions under the United States charter.

DRIVER TELLS HOW HE GOT OUT OF DROWNED CAR

THE DALLES, Ore., Jan. 31—A cool-headed driver told today how he avoided drowning by staying in his submerged car after it had dived into eight feet of water in the Columbia river.

Phil L. Ryan of Seattle drove off a wharf into a ferry slip as the ferry pulled out. He tried to open the door, but the water pressure kept it shut.

Fighting back his panic, he stayed in the car five or six minutes until water seeping in had equalized the pressure and the water had risen to his neck.

Then he opened the door and shot to the surface before amazed onlookers, who pulled him out.

The mamme apple is the native name of a highly esteemed fruit of the West Indies and tropical America. It is grown on a tree 60 to 70 feet tall. The fruit is roundish from the size of a hen's egg to that of a large orange with a thick, leathery rind, and very delicate inner rind that must be carefully removed before the fruit is eaten on account of its bitter taste.

The Denver group described the action as a nationwide "movement on the part of conscientious objectors and undeclared pacifists who now are ready to refuse to compromise any longer in any way with the war system."

ROYAL FAMILY STARTS TRIP TO SOUTH AFRICA

Bitter Cold Weather Forces Cancellation Of Parade At Sendoff Party

LONDON, Jan. 31—King George and Queen Elizabeth, accompanied by Princess Elizabeth and Princess Margaret Rose, leave London's Waterloo station today for Portsmouth on the first stage of their trip to South Africa.

Severe wintry weather and a heavy fall of snow blanketed London's grimy buildings at the departure of the royal party. It forced cancellation of the planned state parade, and relieved Londoners of the duty of standing in freezing cold to wave "bon voyage" to their king and queen.

However, some crowds were expected to gather despite the slush and bitter winds to bid farewell to the royal party.

Besides it being the first time the young princesses ever have gone outside Britain, the journey has taken on added interest for the British people. This stems from the general belief that the engagement of Princess Elizabeth to Prince Philip of Greece may be announced when the royal family returns to England in May.

The heiress to the throne will celebrate her 21st birthday while the royal party is in Capetown on April 21, a few days before the departure for England.

The king's brother and sister, the Duke of Gloucester and the Princess Royal, will travel with the royal party to Portsmouth.

The royal family embarks in the battleship Vanguard as soon as they arrive in Portsmouth this evening, and will sail tomorrow morning.

The Duke of Gloucester, recently returned from being governor-general of Australia, will carry out the king's duties during his absence, assisted by counsellors of state who will include the princess royal.

Extra clothing coupons have been granted to the queen and the two princesses by special order of the cabinet in order that they will have a suitable wardrobe for the tour. The king had personally supervised a good supply of wines and cigars for entertaining visitors aboard the Vanguard.

GIRL MAULED BY BEAR WANTS TO 'GET UP, PLAY'

BALTIMORE, Md., Jan. 31—Four-year-old Anna Louise Hastings, unaware her left leg has been amputated just below the knee, pleaded with the nurses at the University hospital today to "please let me get up and play."

The bright-eyed little girl who was mauled and bitten by a bear at nearby Pikesville, told her nurses that "I don't want to stay in bed any more."

But it will be many a day before her plea is answered, if ever. Physicians say the child's life still will be endangered for another two days until they know if she is safe from possible infection.

Then if she survives, little Anna must face another amputation. Her leg above the knee must be removed.

Anna was bitten by the seven-year-old bear, a pet, when she fell near the animal's cage.

She has received half a dozen or more transfusions and can be seen only by her doctors and nurses.

HOUSEWORK TO BE ELIMINATED IN THE FUTURE

CLEVELAND, Jan. 31—Milady may have a home someday where housework will be only a word in history books.

B. M. Woods, president of the American Society of Heating and Ventilating Engineers, told Cleveland Rotarians yesterday that such present-day gadgets, such as the vacuum cleaner and washer, were only partial solutions of the housework problem.

"Even the dishwashing machine leaves 50 per cent of the washing process to be done manually," Woods said.

The engineer predicted that home engineering in the future will be as productive as industrial engineering is today.

"Then we can say goodbye to housework."

NOT SO EASY AS IT LOOKS!

I have to laugh when I hear fellows who don't know a left-handed monkey wrench from a striped barber pole say, "Well, if I only had the tools, I could fix my own car."

Listen, folks—it takes a whole of a lot more than a pin box to make a good Medical Doctor—and it takes more than micrometers and wrenches to make a good Doctor of Motors!

It takes plenty on the ball—and plenty of "know-how." Now I know the Doctors of Motors in and around Cleveland pretty well. I should... been doing business with them for 10 years. There's a good man in every first-class shop in these parts—and he's a good man to know these days. He'll meet you more than halfway every time. Give him that chance. Don't let little car troubles grow into a whole family of big ones.

STAKE IN KOREA

ANCIENT, cultured Korea is divided by two occupying forces, the Russians at the north, Americans in the south. She wants her freedom. It was promised at the Cairo Conference and at Yalta. Until the Japanese surrender in 1945, Korea had been an unwilling and exploited part of that Empire since 1910. Russia, despite her short participation in the Pacific war, moved immediately into Korea. Likewise this country's forces. Both were to "disarm the Japanese". Both were welcomed as liberators by Koreans.

Wide dissatisfactions developed. American forces were not trained for Korean occupancy, did not know the language. Complaints emphasized the fact that the Soviets were appropriating too much land and resources, particularly food. Nearly a million Koreans fled to the U. S. area. Crop failures aggravated the situation everywhere, as did accusations of both Japanese collaboration activities and the tyrannical influence of Communists. The American commander, Lieut. Gen. John R. Hodge, called an interim legislative advisory council meeting last December that was not too successful but seems to be a beginning of progress.

In the meantime American forces are not going to withdraw, as Russia patently hoped. The United States is committed to remain until Koreans have the right kind of democratic free government. Korea, heretofore vaguely distant country to Americans, will figure more and more in 1947's news and diplomatic reports. Thus are the frontiers of the once isolated United States pushed across the globe.

ALWAYS ANOTHER DOOR

A 62-year-old GI in Decatur, Ill., is back at the books. He started college at the University of Illinois in 1907. He went to work before he finished, enlisted in World War I, took up his job after the armistice. When World War II came he and his two sons donned their country's uniform. Now he's a junior at James Milliken University, studying engineering and intending to keep at it until he gets his degree.

Many people at 62 think of life as about done with them, or they with it. They can see no more stimulating or exciting prospects in the years that are left. The Decatur man looks at it differently. Keeping abreast of his younger classmates is doubtless strenuous at times, but it's never dull. Not all 60-year olds can go to school, but they can be learners. The kingdom of contentment is made of people inspired by that divine discontent which spurs them to keep on improving the mind.

The Army and Navy, we observe, are going to "unify their forces", but will keep separate chiefs "just in case." It's an old American custom to keep two strings to your bow.

Assignment: America . . . by Kenneth L. Dixon

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31—It never ceases to be amazing to re-discover that the most intricate tragic-comic situations always seem to be cooked up unwittingly by the methodical minds of unfunny men.

Thus it is with "the battle of Morgenthau's diary." Regardless of who eventually gains total custody of that 900-volume record accumulated by the former secretary of the treasury during his public life, the damage has been done.

Hundreds of men about town are shaking with laughter at the plight of others who merely are shaking.

All of which must come as a distasteful surprise to Mr. Morgenthau—for if I learned one thing in those bygone days when certain satiric editors banished me to the dismal gloom of the treasury beat, it was that the secretary was not a funny man.

Nor did he claim to be. Many citizens said he had no sense of humor at all. Others felt he probably had one but, like the undertaker with the garish crimson gift tie, kept it hidden in the closest as an improper thing to wear in public.

Now neither thesis may be correct. But certainly when the ex-secretary disclosed he had depended heavily on the dictaphone for accurate detail in gathering that gargantuan diary, he had no intention of exploding the biggest practical joke of the month about the heads of startled capital officialdom.

Which is exactly what he did. . .

If there's one thing that strikes fear into the heart of the strongest politician or public figure it's a dictaphone—particularly in the office of a friend. . .

"It's not so much that they're afraid of Morgenthau," chortled a famous former bureau boss the other night at a public dinner. "After all, you can't imagine confiding your personal affairs or questionable political deals to old Henry. But you will tell some of your friends. . .

"And what he's done has suddenly made all the boys realize that there may be one of those blasted gadgets hooked on the phone or under the desk of every guy they know!"

Suddenly the ex-official, long-hailed as a hearty party guy (both political and nocturnal) howled with laughter as a thought struck him.

"Know what I'm going to do?" he yelled. "I'm going to pass the word around quietly that I had dictaphones all over the place and hooked onto the phone all the time I was in office! Brother, I'll have a hundred guys yelling for mercy in a week."

"Yeah," drawled a man across the table drily. "Or else you'll be dead. . ."

Even without that last suggestively-lethal crack, you hear just such conversations all over town nowadays. For any individual, there is something genuinely distasteful about hidden dictaphones.

For a public official—even though innocent of any wrongdoing—there is something horribly frightening. For a mere mechanism scarcely can be expected to distinguish between a joke and a serious statement.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31—The British are said to be the smartest diplomats in all the world, but that has not been said much lately.

The foreign minister, Mr. Bevin, has had a tussle with Pravda and/or Stalin the past few weeks which may cause some revisions of opinion on that subject. Mr. Bevin's rotund philosophy of foreign policy was being hard pressed at home by certain rowdies in the ranks of his socialist labor party who claimed he was too close to the United States. They wanted a more pro-Soviet or anti-American policy. So Mr. Bevin made a speech. He said Britain is not tying herself to anyone—just like that, not tying herself to anyone.

Imagine Mr. Bevin's chagrin and surprise when criticism of his remark came not from America, not even from his own rowdies, but from that great international mind which knows all, sees all, but does not tell very much—Pravda. Now Pravda said Bevin's remark renounced and repudiated the British mutual air pact with Russia. Mr. Bevin must have lost five pounds or more when he read that, for he did an unexpected if not unheard of thing. He wrote Stalin. He sent an official note denying the Pravda interpretation of his own remarks. He assured Stalin he had no such thing in mind, a plea which was not hard to believe because no one else thought so. He had not even been talking about being tied to Russia but answering complaints that he was tied to us.

It would require a British sense of humor to understand how Bevin could possibly have taken the Pravda accusation seriously. But he did in the note, saying his observation had been "lifted out of context" and "distorted," which indeed it had been—both.

Now do not go away, kiddies. Here the story just starts to become interesting. Pravda, which sees things no one in the entire world can see, came right back at the poor misunderstood (?) Mr. Bevin and said he was wrong in interpreting his own speech. Bevin did not know what he meant by his own remarks, said Pravda, and added: "this cannot be denied."

Well, Stalin denied it—the very same day (January 23.) Shades of Siberia! Spirit of forced labor in the salt mines! The editor of Pravda was refuted by Stalin. Gullible as I am, I immediately conjured visions of the whole staff of Pravda being invited by the O. G. P. U. to pack up suddenly and ask no questions because they were going somewhere. I know what trouble it is to dispute an editor in a democracy. But for a Pravda editor to dispute Stalin! The contemplation of such an event thrusts me into unutterable sadness.

Anyway, kiddies, the great and good Stalin answered Bevin's alarm, calmed his troubled mind, straightened out his misunderstood spirit, and said Bevin was right in his interpretation—that is, he was right if he changed some of the weakening reservations in the Anglo-Russian treaty. Or perhaps it is not entirely accurate to put it so obviously. What Stalin precisely said was that the weakening reservation should be changed presumably to bring Britain further into the Russian camp, and that Bevin was right, of course, in interpreting his own remarks. Stalin did not mention what reservations. Quite plainly he was dickering for some kind of better deal for himself.

When Tubes of the Lungs Are Dilated or Stretched

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

WHEN the bronchi or tubes of the lungs become dilated or stretched, there is a tendency for infection to occur with the result that secretions collect in the air passages. This condition, known as bronchiectasis, is especially likely to affect older people.

According to Dr. Arthur M. Olsen of the Mayo Clinic, the best treatment for this condition is surgical. For example, if the dilated bronchi are all in one lobe or section of the lung, an operation may be performed and this part of the lung removed.

Cannot Stand Operation

However, many patients who have bronchiectasis cannot receive surgical treatment. Elderly patients often do not withstand the lung operation very well. Furthermore, in many of them, the breathing is not normal, and others suffer from asthma which would make operation on the lung hazardous. Hence, these patients must be treated medically.

The medical treatment for bronchiectasis consists, first of all, of measures to improve the patient's general health and nutrition; second, measures to aid in getting rid of the secretions in the lung; and, third, efforts to overcome infection which is present.

In building up the patient's general health, of course, plenty of good food, rest, sunlight and ultraviolet ray treatments are helpful. These patients do best in a warm, dry climate. The patient with bronchiectasis is wise not to smoke.

Various Preparations

In helping to get rid of the secretions, various preparations may be given which will thin out the thick material. These include iodides and ammonium chloride. The breathing in of steam from a steam kettle may also be helpful. A method known as postural drainage may also be employed. This is done by having the patient lie for from 15 to 30 minutes with his head lower than his hips, such as over the edge of a bed.

The breathing in of a solution of penicillin in the form of a spray would appear to be the best method for getting rid of infection. Dr. Olsen has found that such treatment produces a great reduction in the amount of sputum in about half of the cases. He has also tried a mixture of penicillin and streptomycin and has found that this, also, gives excellent results. This type of treatment may also be carried out before operation on the lungs in those cases where it is found practical.

These new measures of treatment are a great boon to the patient with bronchiectasis for whom little relief was possible in earlier days.

SYNOPSIS

Cliff Bogard risks his capital by accepting the U. S. Rubber Division's dangerous assignment to open up virgin rubber plantations in New Dixie, South America, a kind of fabled colony which had been founded by Americans before the Civil War. When its present head, domineering, old Claribel Florian, had refused Cliff an option, fearing it would stir up trouble with the Blacklanders, a group of rebellious natives, Washington had sent down attractive Janet Norman to straighten things out. Janet knew the territory, having been brought up there by her late father, beloved doctor of the community, whose death had occurred during a recent flood. Janet had her own reason for coming back, and it was to forget the credentials she presented to Cliff. En route to New Dixie from the coast, their plane is forced down near the jungle home of elderly Wade Carroll, hunter of wild animals. Wade discloses that he knows the identity of the Blacklanders' new leader, whom the New Dixie vaqueros have sworn to capture, together with Vicente, his lieutenant. Lilli, attractive young native girl whom Wade adopted when her parents died, has known the latter since childhood. While Wade prepares horses, Vicente rides out of the jungle and warns Cliff to give up the rubber project. However, following a talk with Janet, he permits them to continue their journey, with the proviso they tell no one of having seen him. At Claribel's mansion a servant shows them to rooms. The following morning Cliff noted the cold dislike in their hostess' eyes as she greeted Janet. Two years before, Madison, Claribel's beloved nephew, had fallen in love with Janet and followed her to the States. Claribel begged Janet to use her influence to make him return, promising to do anything for her if she succeeded. Janet turned down Madison's proposal, and now, when Claribel refused to consider the option, she reminded her of that promise. Just as Claribel was about to acquiesce, word arrives that Vicente and his gang have burned Cliff's warehouse. Angered that they did not inform her the culprit was in the neighborhood, Claribel dispatches a messenger to the range for Madison, and orders Cliff and Janet to leave immediately.

CHAPTER TEN

TURNING ON his heel, Cliff walked to the window. Down in the village the bell still tolled its warning; crowds had gathered in the streets, and at the far end of the pasture men were frantically saddling horses. His coming had brought all this about, but he ceased to concern him now—he no longer shared any part of it. He was done—and for the first time in his life he knew the frustration of defeat.

A low sigh beside him recalled Janet, and at thought of her he felt his anger revive.

Somberly he regarded her. The morning sun was kindling a thousand points of fire in her bronze hair, but her face was pale, and the dark eyes shadowed with pain. She was like a child punished without knowing why, and even in his resentment Cliff felt a wave of sympathy for her—whatever her motive had been, she was facing the shattered wreckage of her hopes.

She looked up at him. "What are we going to do now?" she whispered. "What can we do?"

"We're going to pack." In the quiet room his voice sounded sharper than he intended. "Why don't you face it? You're through." "Through." Blankly she echoed the word, then in the next breath blazed at him in a flare of unhappy anger. "And you're glad I'm through! Why don't you say it? You're glad. You wanted me to fail from the very start. You wanted to believe that no woman on earth knew enough to help you."

"You haven't done much to change my mind."

She raised both hands to her lips. "I never want to see you—"

She started for the door, but his own hand closed on her arm.

"Wait!" He held her in her tracks, while she looked at him out of eyes bright with tears but too startled even for resentment.

"Quarreling won't get us anywhere," he said slowly. "What about this Madison? Who is he?"

"Claribel's nephew. Let go of my arm."

Cliff's hand dropped to his side. "Where does he fit in?"

"He manages everything for Claribel—especially the herds of cattle. He's head of the vaqueros."

"He seems to be a trained seal where you're concerned. From what our charming hostess just said, you have plenty of influence with him."

She frowned. "What about it? He isn't here."

"But you heard her send a rider to bring him in. You must know someone who will get word to Madison that you're down at Wade's."

"He couldn't possibly arrive before the plane leaves."

"It's worth a chance, isn't it? What have we got to lose?" He half pushed her toward the door.

"Try it. And if the old steam-roller comes back, I'll delay things."

Hope—even the faint hope that lay in his words—brought a touch of color to Janet's cheeks. She ran from the room, and Cliff watched her hurry down the path. Long odds, but he was used to long odds.

A few minutes later Claribel stamped in. "You still here?" she snapped.

"Still here, darling."

They eyed each other as two fencers might. There was a directness and vitality about her that, in spite of his anger, gave Cliff a sense of kinship with the high-handed old matriarch. At least he could understand her; she wasn't withdrawn and unpredictable like Janet Norman. She was a dragon, but she was consistent, and he could easily have liked her if things had been different.

Cliff decided to make one last effort. "When I rode up to this house yesterday," his slow voice drawled, "the first thing I saw was the American flag. That gave me a big thrill. I had a feeling that whoever flew that flag would be glad to help the U. S. A."

"Still talking about rubber, are you?" Claribel began gathering up the papers on her desk.

"I am. So is the whole world. Just now, rubber is almost as important as food, especially the high-grade stuff on your New Dixie plantations. I wonder if you know the importance of the thing you're blocking. Back in Washington there are men who want to make this continent self-sufficient in rubber so that no other nation can ever put the squeeze on us and bring us to our knees as they did during the war. I came here to help them do that. It was my chance to do something really big for my country. And when I saw that flag outside your house, I thought I could count on your help."

Claribel lifted a stubby hand. "Before we all join in singing the National Anthem, let me remind you that I'm responsible for what happens here—not you. Under other circumstances I would have let you take all the rubber you wanted, but today the Blacklanders have a leader who has already done away with some of my vaqueros, and I'll take no chances of starting a general feud with them."

"Then why don't you haul down that American flag and hoist a white one? You make me ashamed—an American woman bluffed by a handful of bandits."

He expected the blue eyes to glisten, but instead she gave a throaty chuckle. "You wouldn't be trying to rile an old lady into changing her mind, would you, Bogard? It's your kind that stir up most of the world's troubles."

"I'd hate to spend my life dodging trouble."

"From all I've heard, you spend it looking for trouble—and I must say you're in good company."

"You mean Miss Norman?"

"Who else? That girl's a menace."

Cliff laughed. "She's a rabbit I ever saw one."

This time Claribel's blue eyes snapped. "As a judge of human nature, you're not better than most men. Janet Norman is a thoroughly cold-blooded, calculating mix—just the kind you men go off the deep end for. Madison's been perfectly ridiculous about her for

When she went back to the States, she got him to follow her, and when I told her I'd cut him off without a penny if he married her, she dropped him like a hot potato and sent him back. That's the kind of rabbit she is. Not that it ever did a man any good to warn him about a woman."

With a gesture of finality the old lady pointed out the window. "Those two horses are waiting for you and your little bunny. Also, there's a man ready to guide you to the plane, so begin packing."

Cliff started up the stairs—he had gained a little time, and every minute might count. "Do you mind if I take a look at the warehouse on the way down?" he called to her. "I'd like to see if Vicente left anything worth salvaging."

"Why not? The lower trail passes it—and the sooner you get going, the better."

Cliff had just finished throwing his belongings into a bag when Janet came running upstairs, breathless with exertion.

"A friend of Father's promised to give Madison my message," she whispered to Cliff. "Is there anything else I can do?"

"Nothing." He snapped the suitcase closed. "From now on we're on a delaying action and pray that your boy friend shows up."

"He's not my—" she began angrily, then broke off as she saw his slow smile. "I suppose Claribel told you that."

"She intimated that you were quite a siren." He picked up the suitcase. "Ready?"

SCALLOPED OYSTERS

Scalloped oysters make an excellent main dish, full of nutrients.

BY BETTY NEWTON

The use of the oyster as food dates back to Indian days in America when a young Indian brave was lying on the shore of Delaware Bay. He was attracted to a small, peculiar-looking object which looked like a stone, but which seemed to be in halves. He reached for it, but howled in dismay—for it suddenly closed, imprisoning his finger. He struck it with his tomahawk and released his finger. Sticking his finger in his mouth to relieve the pain, he discovered a delicious flavor. Oysters have been enjoyed ever since, or so the story goes.

Oysters should not be washed but only "looked over" to remove any bits of shell. Strain the liquid. Keep them very cold until used. If they have been frozen, use as soon as thawed.

Scalloped Oysters

3 C. coarse cracker crumbs
1 qt. select oysters
Salt, pepper
1 C. top milk
4 Tbsp. butter
4 Tbsp. margarine or drippings

Grease a casserole and sprinkle a heavy layer of crumbs in the bottom. Add a layer of oysters. Season and add more crumbs. Repeat if size of casserole permits. Mix oyster liquor and milk and pour over before topping with last.

The bath in the house of a wealthy Roman usually occupied a whole room with a large sunken tub.

Of 300,000,000 people on the European continent, 65,000,000 are Protestants.

Oyster Chop Suey

2 Tbsp. butter
1 C. chopped onions
1½ C. sliced celery
1½ C. mushrooms
2 C. bean sprouts, if desired
4 Tbsp. Chinese Sauce
1 pt. oysters

Melt the butter, add the onions, and cook until savory and brown. Take care not to scorch them or to brown them crisp. Add the diced celery, mushrooms, and bean sprouts if used. Then add the Chinese Sauce. Cook until the celery is tender. Add the oysters and cook until their edges curl. Serve hot with boiled rice as a border.

Oyster Stew

2 Tbsp. butter
2 C. milk
Salt
Pepper
1 pt. standard oysters
½ C. cold water

Melt butter in milk while scalding. Season. Strain liquor and pour over oysters in a sauce pan. Add water and heat only until edges curl. Add to hot milk and serve at once. Do not let it boil.

NEWS

Behind the NEWS

The point of the matter may have been lost in the humorous but misunderstood British foreign office. It was not lost in the American state department. The current point of the matter was that a treaty for disposal of Germany is to be drawn up in Moscow in March and the basic question at issue is whether to maintain Germany as a democracy or turn it over to totalitarian Communism and how to do either thing. That's the core of all the disputes being stirred in all the anticipating foreign offices. For that Moscow gathering Stalin has now undermined the British position to the point where Bevin is embarrassedly explaining he did not mean what Pravda said he said, but is eager to renew a mutual agreement — one clause of which says Britain is "not to negotiate with any German government for a period of 20 years from 1942 except for German governments which clearly renounce all aggressive intentions." (I bet Pravda will have some fun telling Bevin and the British which German governments are apt to be aggressive, and that none of these are in the Russian occupied zone but in ours, the French and the British).

In short, Russia seems to have the British just about where she wants them — what with Bevin explaining to his own party pro-Muscovites and anti-Americans, explaining to Pravda, explaining to Stalin. Frankly I think he should next write a note to the state department explaining that he has not been trapped by anyone.

Truly, no one is saying currently the British diplomats are the most clever in all the world. And I will be willing to make my usual top wager of 25 cents that the Pravda writer who has now been officially proclaimed to have been wrong, will get a medal instead of Siberia.

Opinions expressed by the writer in the column are the views of the author and not necessarily those of the Circleville Herald.

GRAZIANO FACES BAN FOR LIFE

No. 2 Boxing Attraction Is Given Chance To Tell Name Of Tempter

BY DAVIS J. WALSH
INS Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Jan. 31—They have a large, globular spot marked off in the fashionable zebra or target design down at the boxing commission today for Rocky Graziano, who virtuously spurned the villain's gold—after the third episode.

He apparently spent the first two mentally hefting the $100,000 swag before deciding that, after all, there was very little to be said against rectitude. This, anyhow, seemed the purport of the young man's recent statement to the district attorney in a sort of preliminary to today's main event, in which he will be called into open court and given the grim alternative invariably accorded the condemned man.

Speak now or henceforth hold his peace—always, of course, presuming that Rocky Graziano has something to say. Failure to be adequately confiding was expected to result in the fighter being ruled off for life.

Specifically, the ring's No. 2 box office draw will be asked to put a name to the man who is said to have offered him 100 G's worth of persuasion to "throw" a scheduled fight with Cowboy Ruben Shank at Madison Square Garden.

Otherwise, it was virtually ordained that blacklisting in New York and affiliated states will be decreed the first time in history for a fighter of Graziano's stature and notoriety.

This drastic step was in line with seemingly well-founded reports that definite action has been demanded from Albany where Gov. Thomas E. Dewey was said to have become wearied with New York City's mounting assortment of noisome scandals in professional sports.

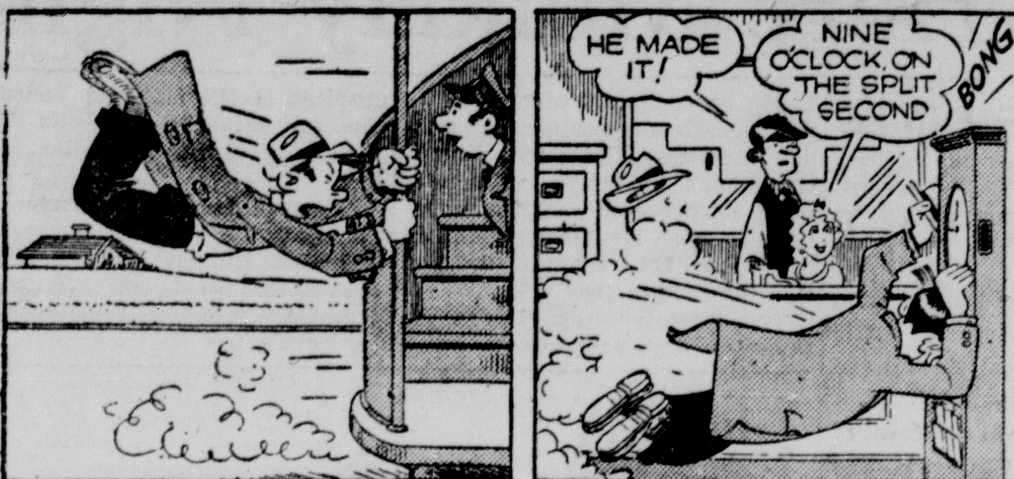

As a further accompaniment, District Attorney Frank Hogan announced that a sweeping inquiry was to be prosecuted into New York boxing as an aftermath of the Graziano incident.

Promoters, managers, seconds, referees and judges — among others—were to be given a complete going over, Hogan said, in an effort to uncover fraud, chicanery and the haphazard thievery alleged to have prospered here in the Circus Maximus atmosphere of the last five years.

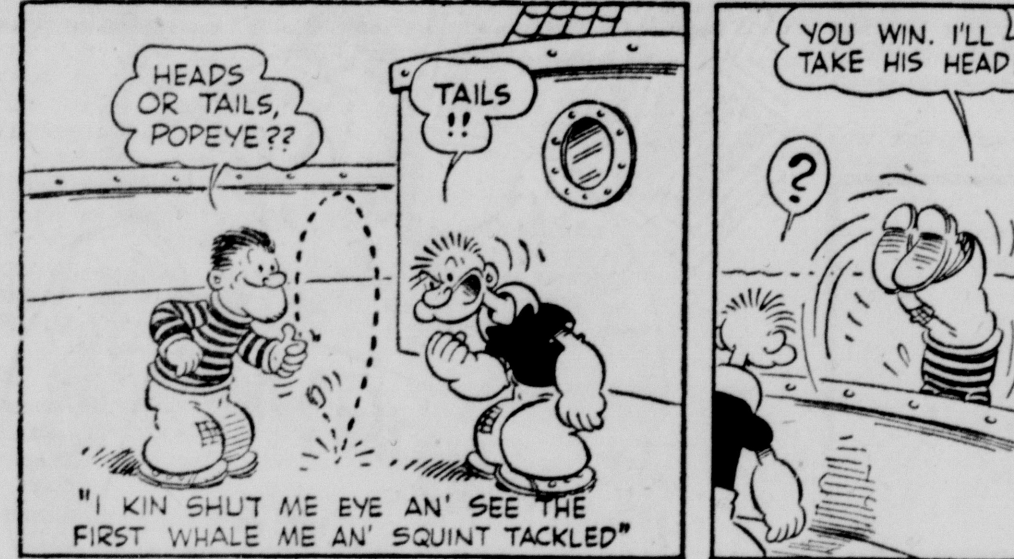

He intimated that the investigation would be launched after the sentencing, Mar. 3, of Alvin J. Paris, Broadway character, for his attempted bribery of New York pro football

IS ENOUGH AT STAKE?
SOME HANDS are not good enough for a sacrifice bid at the level of four, but justify a bid at the level of six or seven. That apparent paradox is logical because of a very simple fact. If the opponents have bid to only a game, the loss through the sacrifice might cost more points than the adverse game. But if they have bid a slam—or have exchanged information that make a slam contract by them a practical certainty—then so much is at stake that heavy punishment of your sacrifice would cost you less than you already stand to lose.

Notice that South did not consider he had enough to bid 1-Diamond over 1-Club, nor yet enough playing tricks to try a sacrifice at 4-Diamonds over 3-No Trumps. Yet he considered he had enough to try 6-Diamonds after having passed at the levels of one and four. It was entirely because he felt—after East's 5-Hearts, showing two aces in response to the Blackwood 4-No Trumps—that the opponents were headed for a slam bid, either small or grand, as they were.

A small slam contract would have given the opponents around 1,000 points and a grand slam around fifty per cent more than that. South reckoned that a few dregs in his partner's hand might limit his losses to about five down for a score of 900 or perhaps only four down for 700.

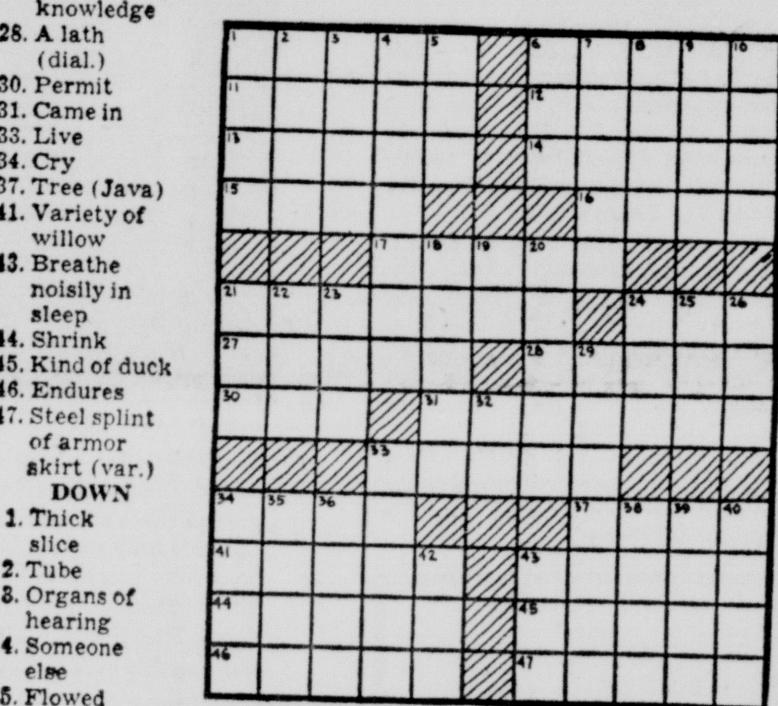

As it developed, the opponents could have scored a grand slam in either No Trumps or clubs. South in his 5-Diamonds doubled lost one trick in spades, three in hearts, one in diamonds and one in clubs, a total of six, so was down five for a score of 900. This made quite a saving against what could have been lost if he had not bid.

its demonstrations, it costs a sizeable chunk, $795. The biggest, a mahogany set about the size of a small apartment, retails at $4,500.

CBS had the floor the entire day Monday to give the FCC a visual demonstration of its color television system, while the moving hand of history took notes. It was the first video performance in an American courtroom.

Tuesday's hearing gave Du Mont a chance to present its case against the CBS petition, and to demonstrate black and white television alongside CBS' color. FCC chairman Charles Denny and the other commissioners left the dais to join the crowd of television presidents, scientists and attorneys to view the demonstration.

A few of the spectators who were granted entry to the hearing brought field glasses along to get a closer view of the screens.

CBS cameras were focused on an attractive young lady in a fetching red costume and green shawl, who danced gracefully to the tempo of a waltz and then whirled to a Latin-American rhythm.

Minus shawl and equipped with a pair of boxing gloves, the blonde model fought a furious battle with an imaginary opponent. The purpose of her various activities was to demonstrate how well color reception would be when performers moved at different speeds.

Color television is not unlike the appearance of technicolor movies. Yesterday, the commission left the courtroom to its dignity and visited the RCA laboratories in Princeton, N. J., for demonstrations there of RCA's simultaneous color transmission. RCA is opposing the CBS petition, too, on the grounds more time is needed before commercial standards are set up for color television.

Most of the hearing dealt with technicalities far above the poor comprehension of the unscientific. It was clearly evident, however, that every time CBS said yes, color television is practical now, the others rose to the contrary.

FCC, although finished with this set of hearings and with a voluminous document of testimony presented last December, is not ready yet to make a decision. There are to be final arguments heard in Washington on February 10.

BY RUBY JUSTER

NEW YORK, Jan. 31—Television set owners, still only a few out of the total United States population, watched with curiosity this week the imposing U. S. courthouse in New York.

In room 1703, usually garbed in the decorum of justice, CBS and Du Mont set up their television equipment to show the federal communications commission whether or not color television is ready for commercial use now.

Huge antennas, looking like giant black weather vanes, flanked the long judge's bench, and polished cabinet model receiving sets practically obliterated the bar of justice.

DISABLED VETS ARE URGED TO ATTEND SESSION

District Commander Of DAV Announces Meeting In Memorial Hall

All war-time disabled veterans in the Cincinnati area have been urged to attend a meeting which is to be held at 8 p. m. Monday in Memorial hall, Cincinnati, under auspices of the Sgt. Orville G. Fuller chapter, No. 70, Disabled American Veterans.

The principal speaker will be Charles R. Click, Dayton, state commander of the DAV.

In making this announcement Edward C. Hutchison, Ashville, commander of the 10th District of the DAV, said the meeting will be held for the benefit of all war-disabled veterans. Commander Click has for a number of years been an outstanding leader of Ohio's war-disabled veterans.

Commander Click will be accompanied to Cincinnati by State Senator Albert L. Daniels who is a past commander of the DAV and is now vice-chairman of the veterans program commission of Ohio.

"The Disabled American Veterans, commonly called the DAV," Commander Hutchison said, "is composed exclusively of those men and women who were wounded, or disabled in some way, as a direct result of war service. It is the only organization of its kind ever to receive a charter from the Congress of the United States. All veterans are invited to attend this meeting, and a special invitation is extended to the women. All questions on individual claims will be answered at the conclusion of the meeting."

LAWYERS STUDY POSSIBLE ACTION AGAINST 'LIP'

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 31 — A panel of prominent attorneys today studied possible contempt action against Leo (The Lip) Durocher for his attack on Judge George A. Dockweiler because of a threat to annul actress Laraine Day's California divorce decree.

Judge Dockweiler appointed the panel to review not only Durocher's tirade at him but the entire Day "double divorce" case.

The Brooklyn baseball manager's outburst at the judge at once drew the wrath of famed criminal lawyer Jerry Giesler and Joe Scott.

Serving on the panel with Giesler and Scott are "friends of the court" are A. H. Risse, Maurice Rose, John W. Fredericks, Jr., county counsel Harold W. Kennedy and his deputy, William E. Lamoreau.

The barristers also will sit as advisers to Dockweiler Tuesday when the actress appears in his court to show cause why her decree of Jan. 20 should not be rescinded.

Dockweiler contends the actress flouted the authority of his court by eloping the next day to El Paso, Tex., with the Brooklyn Dodgers' manager after stopping at Juarez, Mexico, for a "quickie" divorce.

In his statement, Durocher assailed Dockweiler as a "most unethical and publicity-conscious servant of the people."

MARCH OF DIMES DRIVE TO END FRIDAY NIGHT

Annual "March of Dimes" fund drive to provide cash for the battle against infantile paralysis will end Friday night. It began Jan. 15.

Don Henkle, general chairman of the campaign in Cincinnati and Pickaway county, said Friday the drive was successful. However, the amount of contributions had not been tabulated, he said, and it will be several days before the result will be known. The goal in the campaign was $5,000 as compared with $2,800 a year ago. Coin boxes placed in public buildings, offices and stores throughout the city and county must be collected and the donations counted, Henkle explained, to determine the amount dropped into the receptacles. The campaign is part of a nationwide anti-polio drive under auspices of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. The national goal was 24 million dollars. Edward Amey is chairman of the campaign group in Cincinnati, and Mrs. Harriet Hennessey heads the "March of Dimes" volunteer campaigners in the remainder of the county.

PALESTINE EVACUATION ORDER ISSUED

Sen. Bridges Urges Stiffer Russian Policy

SOLOM CHARGES ANTI-AMERICAN DRIVE STARTED

Marshall Reported Planning To Ask Restatement Of Potsdam Agreement

By International News Service
Washington spotlight switched to capitol hill today where Sen. Bridges (R) N. H., called for a stiffening of America's back against Russia to combat what he said was "an anti-American drive sparked by Moscow."

Bridges, chairman of the senate appropriations committee, charged that the five pending treaties merely have "confirmed" Russian domination in Europe while the USSR in China has "broken its promises" and treats that country like a "conquered nation."

The senator's attack on Russia was made in a statement in which he declared that:

1. A formal inspection of atomic bomb production would be inadequate in "a police state like Russia." 2. Russia aims to turn Germany into a "satellite and ally." 3. Despite claimed "concessions," Russia has "given up nothing essential." 4. Former Secretary of State Byrnes "inherited a sorry mess of appeasement and political muddling" but was well-started on restoration of confidence in American leadership when he resigned.

The Bridges statement came as Secretary of State Marshall was reported planning to ask a complete restatement of the Potsdam agreement when he attends the "big four" foreign ministers meeting in Moscow next March.

Marshall, who received the confidence of Bridges was said to be supported by President Truman and other high officials who are dissatisfied with Russian compliance with commitments made at the Potsdam conference after the end of the European war.

The major points of dissatisfaction were said to be the inability to obtain an arrangement whereby Germany would be treated as an economic whole; reviving U. S. Soviet talks on Korea which broke down when the Russians withdrew, and the recent Polish elections.

On the domestic side, house Republicans apparently were committed to a graduated personal income tax reduction program today (Continued on Page Two)

ONE MAN'S OPINION

By Walter Klerman

The Republicans have become as noisy about tax cuts as a toothless man eating wet sponge cake.

Under the Democrats we worked three days a week for the treasury and so far the new management has done nothing to change our hours.

The Democrats once promised a 25 per cent cut, the Republicans promised a 20 per cent cut; everybody promises cuts and we always wind up with bruises.

Government has a boyish aversion to having its allowance cut and unfortunately has many sympathizers for a different reason.

Those are the people who don't care where the money goes so long as it is taken away from someone who has more than they have.

They are for high taxes like the maid who was for single-blessedness until she found a husband.

There is nothing wrong with their viewpoint that a million dollars wouldn't cure if they could latch onto it.

HITLER'S PHOTOGRAPHER GETS 10-YEAR SENTENCE

MUNICH, Jan. 31—Heinrich Hoffman, Hitler's personal photographer, was sentenced today to 10 years at hard labor by a German denazification court.

The court also ordered the 63-year-old Hoffman stripped of his personal fortune, estimated at nine million marks.

Cleveland Hit As Storms Ravage Middle West

FLOOD WATERS swirl across Cleveland's Euclid avenue as a crazy-quilt of storms played havoc across the middlewestern states.

MUCH COLDER WEATHER DUE

Lowest Marks Of Year May Follow Storms Which Swept Over Ohio

By International News Service
It was snowing and much colder over most of Ohio today after a hodge-podge of weather conditions brought much distress and damage to scattered sections of the state.

The edge of a northwestern cold wave conflicting with a warm air mass from the south was blamed for sleet and rain storms which tore down power lines and disrupted telephone service in many places.

Forecasters said the weather now has settled down toward a cold spell that will extend through Monday, with probably the sharpest drop in temperatures coming Sunday morning.

The heavy rainfall through yesterday closed many highways as swollen streams raced over their banks.

The sleet and ice storm in northwestern Ohio yesterday was reported as the worst in 25 years. In the Bryan area alone, 1,000 utility poles were uprooted by the storm. Many homes still were without electricity today.

Damage estimated at $25,000 resulted in Springfield where a 50-mile-an-hour wind struck with terrific force, damaging homes and factories. Some 6,000 persons were injured there due to industrial damage.

The heavy downpours ranged from fractions of an inch to 1.42 inches at Cleveland.

After hitting near-record highs again yesterday, the mercury this morning was below freezing over the entire state. Temperatures at Cincinnati and Chesapeake skidded (Continued on Page Two)

LILIENTHAL IS ATTACKED BY FORMER TVA FOE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31—David Lilienthal, chairman of the atomic commission, was accused today of believing in "government of men and not of laws—like Mr. Stalin of Russia."

The charge was made by Lilienthal's old Tennessee valley foe—Sen. McKellar (D) Tenn., in a hearing by atomic committee senators on Lilienthal's appointment to head the nation's nuclear energy program.

McKellar read from a magazine article written by Lilienthal, former TVA chairman, in 1925 in which Lilienthal was quoted: "Our government and every government must be a government of men and not of laws." McKellar then demanded: "If that is correct where is there any difference between that and the political views of Mr. Stalin of Russia."

MacArthur Bans Strike By Japanese

TOKYO, Jan. 31—General MacArthur called an official halt today to plans for a general strike by two and one-half million Japanese government leaders.

Strike leaders were at first determined to defy the Allied supreme commander, but later capitulated and cancelled the mass walkout.

The strike had been called for midnight tonight as a protest against the Yoshida government. Strike committee chairman Yoshida II was summoned to Allied occupation headquarters to receive directly the word that MacArthur would not permit the strike.

The strike committee had quibbled over whether MacArthur's statement to newsmen announcing the ban constituted an "official" (Continued on Page Two)

FATHER'S LAST WISH GRANTED; SON NAMED PAGE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31—Politicians do have a heart!

And because they do a 15-year-old orphan boy, James W. Richardson Jr., Ironton, will become a house page tomorrow—the answer to a father's dying request.

Rep. Jenkins (R) Ohio, related yesterday to a house which suddenly became quiet the "sad and true story" of a world war veteran's last wish that his motherless boy be appointed a house page so he would have someone to look after him.

Jenkins told the house: "This boy's father, a World War I veteran from my home town, came to me and said he was going to the hospital again for treatment. When I saw him I didn't think he'd come back. He didn't. His last wish was that his boy be named a page and that someone keep an eye on him."

Jenkins conferred with Rep. Allen (R) Ill., chairman of the house patronage committee, who immediately arranged the boy's appointment. The Ohioan will act as his sponsor.

Jenkins' office said the boy's father, a Navy yard worker, died Monday of a heart attack at Bethesda naval hospital and was buried yesterday in Arlington cemetery.

With the money he will receive as a page, young Richardson will be able to continue his schooling in Washington.

OSU ASKED TO WAIT

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 31—Ohio State University board of trustees was asked today to defer the appointment of a dean of the university's college of agriculture. An 11-man committee representing independent agriculture interests in the state is opposing the proposed selection of Leo L. Rummel, Cincinnati, for the post.

MILLER SEEKS MAYOR'S POST

City Safety Director Makes Formal Announcement He Will Be Candidate

Thurman I. Miller, Circleville safety director, Friday announced formally his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for mayor at the May 6 primary election.

Circulation of petitions on behalf of Miller was in progress Friday. Mayor Ben H. Gordon announced that he is not a candidate for re-election.

Miller, who is widely known in Masonic circles, was appointed safety director by Mayor Gordon in February, 1945. Miller is 46 years old. He was born in Circleville, attended local schools, and in 1926 he established a local shop which he has since operated. The post of safety director is the only political job he has held. His friends claim he has done an excellent job in the city's service. He is the first to announce his candidacy for mayor.

It was reported Friday that others who will compete for the mayoralty nominations include Ernie W. Weiler, Democrat; Joseph E. Brink, Democrat; and James Wickenseimer, Republican.

City Solicitor George E. Gerhardt said he will run for re-election.

Most of the seven members of the city council are expected to seek re-election although none has yet made formal announcement. Wednesday night is the deadline for filing the nominating petitions with the Pickaway county board of elections.

450 EMPLOYEES OF STATE BUC TO BE LAID OFF

COLUMBUS, Jan. 31—The Ohio bureau of unemployment compensation confirmed an International News Service report today that 450 employees will be laid off because of federal budget cuts.

The employees to be dropped from the payroll constitute more than one-half of the staff that the BUC claims is necessary to handle adequately the processing of claims and other BUC activities.

An official BUC statement said the layoffs will be effective Feb. 7.

The state bureau immediately ordered local offices to institute an emergency plan of bi-weekly reports and payments. Spokesmen pointed out this meant that claimants will be paid every two weeks instead of weekly as at present.

Employees in the employment service division of the BUC are unaffected by the payroll reduction since that service was recently turned back to the states from federal control. On January 1 the unemployment compensation branch employed 1,675 workers and the employment service 1,217.

SOLOMNS OFFER 5-POINT PLAN FOR U. S. OIL

Special Petroleum Group Reports Russia Has Greater Supplies

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31—The senate special petroleum committee today advanced a five-point program to sustain dwindling U. S. oil supplies in the face of a great Russian petroleum potential. The committee filed an exhaustive report covering its activities since its inception in March, 1944. The recommended program called for:

1. Legislation to stimulate oil exploration and development in the United States, as well as encouragement of conservation. 2. Government promotion of research into synthetic fuels without competition with private industry. 3. Tax reforms "to restore the incentives for the risk of private capital in new ventures."

4. Disclosure to the government of the terms, conditions and obligations by which American companies undertake to carry on the petroleum industry abroad. 5. "A foreign policy designed to promote full development of the petroleum resources of the whole world for the benefit of all the people of the world."

The report stated that American oil discoveries had decreased in size and importance, while foreign discoveries had multiplied. It said: "The best evidence available at the moment would indicate that the land area of Russia is a greater potential source of petroleum than continental United States."

The committee reported that while less than one-third of the (Continued on Page Two)

Noah A. Warner, 94, retired Circleville grocer and one of the oldest residents of Pickaway county, died at 11:30 a. m. Friday in his home at 302 East Main street. He had been ill for about one month and death was attributed to infirmities of age. He was a life-long resident of the community.

Mr. Warner was born Jan. 21, 1853 in Washington township, the son of Andrew and Julia Warner. He was married Dec. 29, 1881 to Flora E. Morris. For many years he was active in Methodist church affairs and held various offices in the Methodist Episcopal church.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Flora E. Warner; one son, M. E. Warner, Detroit, Mich.; one brother, William H. Warner, Circleville; and 3 grandchildren and 8 great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2 p. m., Monday, at the residence. The Rev. C. A. Thomas will officiate. Burial will be in Forest cemetery. It is requested that flowers be omitted.

The body will be removed from the Mader chapel to the residence Sunday morning. Friends may call at the Mader chapel Saturday and at the home Sunday.

FCC APPROVES RADIO PERMIT FOR SNOWPLOWS

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 31—Ohio had authorization today to set up a radio communications system for use on its snow plows.

The state had asked the federal communications commission for permission to install the system in the northern part of the state as a means of keeping the highways clear of snow. The FCC granted the permit for construction of stations at Ashtabula and Ravenna, plus one mobile station.

This is the first authorization ever granted by the FCC for such a purpose.

Evacuation Order Causes Sensations In London

LONDON, Jan. 31—A sensation unparalleled since war days was created in London today with announcement that Great Britain has ordered evacuation of women and children, along with other "non-essential persons" from Palestine.

Winston Churchill branded the move as "the road to abject defeat and shame" and called upon the United States to share Britain's burdens in the Holy Land under auspices of the United Nations.

With all British women and children ordered out of the Holy Land by Tuesday next aboard ships dispatched by the admiralty for this express purpose, London was deluged with sensational headlines.

There were official announcements of all the drastic measures taken, and there was debate in the house of commons.

Col. Oliver Stanley warned that Britain must handle the situation with a firm hand or see Palestine turned into a "bloody hell for Briton, Jew and Arab alike."

Churchill followed his conservative team-mate with a bitter criticism of Prime Minister Clement Richard Attlee's government for its action in granting reprieves to Jewish extremists whose conviction had resulted in anti-British measures that included kidnapping of two prominent residents.

Churchill said: "This is the road to abject defeat and shame . . .

"We have broken our pledges to the Jews . . .

"Finding ourselves incapable of carrying out our promises, we

ENGINEER GETS BLAME FOR OHIO TRAIN DISASTER

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31—The interstate commerce commission today blamed a freight train engineer's failure to observe signals for the wreck of the Pennsylvania's crack Golden Triangle at Mansfield, Ohio, Dec. 15 in which 19 persons were killed and 139 injured.

The ICC reported that the rail disaster was caused by "failure to operate the 'following' freight train in accordance with signal indications."

A freight of which Louis Petoskey, 55, Toledo, was engineer, crashed into another freight train which had halted on the main line near Mansfield because of a broken air hose.

A few minutes later the west-bound Golden Triangle, roaring along at a speed of 70 miles an hour, thundered into the second freight.

Many of the dead and injured were soldiers bound from eastern stations to their homes in the Middle West for Christmas furloughs.

At the time of the crash Petoskey denied he had failed to obey "slow down" signals, asserting that "I had clear signals all the way."

BITTER SIEGE INDICATED

Americans Advised To Make Plans To Leave; Consul Seeks Instructions

JERUSALEM, Jan. 31—All women and children of 2,000 British families along with other "non-essential" civilians were ordered out of Palestine today in a move indicating Great Britain intends to dig in for a bitter siege in the Holy Land.

In a move that Winston Churchill in London decried as "the road to abject defeat and shame," British High Commissioner Sir Alan Cunningham announced the evacuation must be completed by next Tuesday aboard ships provided by the admiralty.

At present, the order affects only British citizens.

But Americans residing in Palestine were advised to contact their consulates as soon as possible. The United States consul-general in Jerusalem has called the state department in Washington for instructions.

London dispatches said the British admiralty has announced that the evacuation will be completed by Tuesday under orders of Admiral Sir Algernon Willis. He is commander-in-chief of the British Mediterranean fleet.

(The London Evening Standard reported in a Jerusalem dispatch that Americans have been instructed to report to the United States consulate.)

The consensus interpretation of the evacuation measure is that it was prepared because of the "unpopular" policy decisions to be announced because of the expected imminent failure of the London talks on Palestine.

The evacuation measure was announced by British High Commissioner Sir Alan Cunningham.

2,000 Families Affected

An estimated 2,000 families were affected by his order. Cunningham likewise advised British news correspondents to leave the Holy Land or remain at their own risk.

In the midst of these energetic preparations the American consulate cabled Washington for an interpretation of the United States position.

The order stated that the women and children—"and certain other British civilians"—will be evacuated so the government armed forces "shall not be hampered in their task of maintaining order."

Well-informed quarters said the evacuation will begin on next Tuesday, February 4.

JUDGE PICARD CALLS CONFAB ON PORTAL PAY

DETROIT, Jan. 31—Federal Judge Frank A. Picard adjourned the public hearing on the Mt. Clemens case shortly after noon today and called principals to his chambers in an attempt to establish agreement on "basic facts" in the historic portal pay suit.

Obviously irritated by quibbling of opposing counsel on such purely factual matters as walking time in the plant and time spent preliminary to the work day, the judge announced that he will give the attorneys one more chance to reach agreement.

He said that if no agreement is reached 30 days of testimony will be required to establish the simple facts in the case.

The judge indicated that he will also attempt to establish in the private conference a definition of de minimis acceptable to both sides and whether the de minimis doctrine is applicable in the Mt. Clemens case.

The issue is whether the time involved in the case, which set the pattern for similar actions totaling nearly five billion dollars, is too trivial to be computed "in the realities of industrial life." It has become "the five billion dollar question."

DANES ASK TALK WITH NORWAY

Reports State Sovereignty Dispute Over Greenland To Be Settled

COPENHAGEN, Jan. 31—The Danish government has invited Norway to a secret conference to settle permanently a long-standing sovereignty dispute over Greenland, the huge sub-arctic island wasteland.

An amicable settlement of the dispute would prepare the way for Denmark to either (1) grant or deny America the military bases on Greenland, or (2) sell the Arctic island outright to the United States.

The Danish government already has informed Norway that it cannot enter into negotiations with America until the sovereignty dispute between the two Scandinavian countries is settled.

On the other hand, Denmark has informed Norway that the American government is insistent in its demands that negotiations for permanent military bases be started as soon as possible.

The source—absolutely authoritative—said the Danish-Norwegian discussions will begin within a few days. It is expected that committees representing the two countries will sit in session for a period from somewhat less than (Continued on Page Two)

ADM. MITSCHER IS 'SERIOUS' IN NAVAL HOSPITAL

NORFOLK, Va., Jan. 31—Admiral Marc A. Mitscher, commander of the Atlantic fleet and wartime leader of famed task force 58, was in a serious condition today at the Norfolk naval hospital as the result of a heart attack.

The hospital said this morning that the admiral's condition was "serious but not critical." Mitscher, who is 60, was stricken Monday.

The Navy announced that Capt. Cecil Andrews, a heart specialist, had been summoned from the naval medical center at Bethesda, Md., to confer with physicians attending the admiral.

ered to move into Allenby barracks by 5 o'clock this afternoon.

Such a move had been predicted earlier in the week, following the kidnapping of banker H. A. I. Collins at Jerusalem and Judge Ralph Windham at Tel Aviv by members of the Jewish underground.

The two Britons were held as hostages against the execution of Dov Gruner, 33-year-old member of Irgun Zvai Leumi, who had been sentenced to death for participating in an armed attack on a police station.

Gruner's reprieve was followed by release of the two prominent Britishers, but not before authorities threatened martial law. The threat was removed yesterday during a search for the captors of Collins, who was treated "badly."

Disclosure that Sir Alan Cunningham, high commissioner for Palestine, had ordered evacuation of women and children together with other "non-essential persons" which included correspondents and even clergymen led to a tornado of speculation.

Moshe Shertok, speaking on behalf of the Jewish agency, said: "It is a great shock. It is drastic action. The reason is not known."

MUCH COLDER WEATHER DUE

from highs of 69 yesterday afternoon to 31 and 32 degrees, respectively, this morning.

Forecasters said that light snow would continue falling through today, letting up through the night. More snow was forecast to begin falling tomorrow afternoon.

The weatherman said that two storms were to affect this area before any relief can be expected.

The initial one was already here while the second one was pushing behind it. The second onslaught may rush the mercury to the lowest point of the season so far, forecasters said.

The state department of highways reported the following roads closed due to high water:

Route 18 in Lorain county, east of Wellington; 53 west of Upper Sandusky; 69 between 224 and 12; 82 in Lorain county at Columbus; 97 at Richland in Richland county, between Butler and Bellevue; 103 in Wyandot county, between 23 and 53; 134 in Highland county at Buford;

146 in Guernsey county from junction of Route 21 to Cumberland City; 294 between 23 and 53; 302 in Ashland county from Edinburg to Wayne county line; 328 northeast of McArthur; 545 in Richland county north and south of Mansfield; 66 in Perry county north of route 204, and route 677 between route 50 and Zaleski.

A new cold wave moved into the Middle West today in the wake of storms across the nation which caused the death of at least 25 persons and injured hundreds of others.

Property damage was estimated at thousands of dollars.

Tornadoes ripped communities in three southern states yesterday, after striking earlier in Missouri and Arkansas. An estimated 14 persons were killed by the tornadoes and at least 60 were injured.

The hardest hit city in the Middle West was Milwaukee, Wis., where traffic was paralyzed by 17 inches of drifting snow. Four deaths there were ascribed to the storm and two other persons lost their lives elsewhere in Wisconsin.

An early death toll of eight from tornadoes was increased when the destructive winds whipped across two counties in western Tennessee and also struck communities in Alabama and Georgia.

Two were dead and 14 injured in the Talladega area of Alabama. Thirty-seven houses were wrecked. In Evergreen, Ala., three were dead and 25 injured. Most of the town was flattened and searchers were still seeking victims.

In Crockett county, Tenn., one person was dead and an undisclosed number injured.

Seven fatalities in Michigan were attributed to the weather.

The coldest weather ever recorded in North America—78.7 below zero—was listed in Snag, Yukon territory, as one feature of yesterday's bad weather.

to us but it must be in anticipation of some trouble."

Stanley, who was secretary of state for the colonies in the Churchill cabinet, charged the labor government with weakness in handling the turbulent situation in Palestine.

He said Prime Minister Clement Attlee's government has no definite policy, and added that unless they can initiate a firm one and prevent further "humiliations," the British had better "clear out."

Warning that quitting Palestine and admitting inability to carry out the mandate there would "be a signal for a bloody civil war," the conservative leader foresaw "consequences" if Britain does not tackle the situation.

Stanley added: "Under the present circumstances, the British troops do not know who their enemies are, or where they are."

Debate on the Palestine problem was begun on the request yesterday of former Prime Minister Winston Churchill who asked for discussion on the "grave outrages" in the Holy Land.

"Certain other British civilians" are to be removed from Palestine, and observers in London said the evacuation of non-essential civilians was framed during high commissioner Sir Alan Cunningham's recent visit to London.

It was designed as the "ace-in-the-hole" should the Palestine situation get out of hand.

Well-informed quarters said instructions were that the evacuation order was to be withheld as long as possible, particularly if a peaceable solution appeared imminent.

after Speaker Martin disowned proposed "across-the-board" reductions previously endorsed by the GOP leadership.

Martin announced that Republicans still were committed to an "overall" 20 percent tax cut as well as a balanced budget and payments on the national debt.

But he said that the 20 percent reduction for each taxpayer, regardless of earnings, was "not a party commitment."

Senate Republicans were not affected by the changed GOP goal, but Sen. George (D) Ga., ranking minority member of the senate finance committee, opposed either an "across-the-board" reduction or an alternative increase in personal tax exemptions.

George said that if any income tax cuts are possible this year he favored a graduated reduction in rates, giving persons in the lower brackets the biggest benefit.

Tobey Blames White House

Sen. Tobey (R) N. H., meanwhile hinted that he believed the White House was responsible for the abortive 10 percent rent ceiling increase as well as for its revocation.

The senate banking committee chairman's statement came as the group prepared to delve into the mystery of who ordered the office of temporary controls to prepare a public announcement of the blanket rent boost which was stopped at the last minute by President Truman.

Tobey said it was "inconceivable to me that the office of temporary controls would have gone as far as it did without a green light from someone in authority."

There were indications that Mr. Truman plans to discuss the rent situation at his cabinet meeting today. The federal works agency revealed that OIC Administrator Fleming was hurrying back from Iowa to attend the meeting.

A FWA spokesman said that Fleming probably also would be available to testify before Tobey's committee today.

It also was reported on Capitol Hill that war assets administrator Robert M. Littlejohn is expected to sell the government's big and little inch pipelines for the transmission of both petroleum and natural gas.

MacArthur's order was issued a scant 10 hours before the mass walkout was to get under way.

Before MacArthur stepped in with his directive, labor leaders said they were under "pressure" from occupation officials to call off the proposed strike.

Coming hard on the heels of the disclosure of Russia's request for military bases and mutual sovereignty in Spitsbergen, the Greenland problem becomes a delicate issue for Norway.

In both cases it must adopt a stand for or against either power establishing military bases (in the case of Greenland, U. S. bases from the war period still exist).

JULIAN WILL BE ARRAIGNED ON SATURDAY

Others Indicted By Grand Jury To Face Judge Here Saturday

Harvey B. Julian, 26, indicted on a first degree murder charge in the slaying of his divorced wife, Mrs. Pearl Eileen Julian, 20, is scheduled for arraignment at 10 a. m. Saturday before Judge William D. Radcliff in Pickaway county common pleas court.

Several others also indicted by the grand jury which held a one-day session Tuesday will be arraigned Saturday morning.

An unusually large number of spectators is expected to be present because of the appearance of Julian in court.

Sheriff Charles Radcliff disclosed that Julian has not conferred with an attorney since he has been confined in the jail. The fatal bludgeoning and shooting of Mrs. Julian occurred Jan. 21 just three weeks after she had obtained a divorce. Following the slaying Julian surrendered to the sheriff and, according to Sheriff Radcliff and County Prosecutor Kenneth Roberts, Julian signed a confession of the killing.

It is deemed probable that Judge Radcliff will appoint a lawyer to defend Julian and it is also considered likely that the court will be asked to order Julian sent to the Lima State Hospital for the Criminal Insane for a period of observation.

PUBLIC HEALTH DISCUSSED AT ROTARY MEETING

Importance of safeguarding public health was emphasized by Dr. P. L. Harris, of the state health department, in an address to members of the Cincinnati Rotary club following a noon luncheon, Thursday, at the Pickaway Arms.

Dr. Harris said health departments seek to prevent and control disease, check sanitation, and protect the health of school children. He added that Ohio spends 78 cents per capita annually for health control. The speaker asserted that pasteurized milk is the only "safe" milk.

It was announced that Paul Harris, who founded Rotary in 1905, died a few days ago, and that more than 5,000 Rotary clubs are now in existence.

Dream Comes True For Little English Woman

BY GEORGE L. SCOTT
INS Staff Correspondent
SALEM, Ore., Jan. 31—Mrs. Agnes Boyd looked out the window of her brother's house in Salem today, agreed the Oregon country was lovely but said she still was lonesome for England.

Mrs. Boyd, 64, is in the Pacific Northwest on a 20,000-mile dream holiday paid for by the money she managed to save from almost a lifetime as a charwoman.

She up and left her nine children and 25 grandchildren to their own devices and embarked on her three-months vacation.

"It's a dream come true," said the perky little woman. "All me life I thought such things were idle dreams. Then I just got a notion, I'd worked hard all me life. I'd saved a little. And the children said:

"Go to it, mother."

"So I did."

Mrs. Boyd visited her two sisters in San Francisco, Mrs. Elizabeth McDowell and Mrs. Florence Farrell, where she "had a time of it."

"I've been spoiled," she confessed.

"Very spoiled. I've been treated like a lady by everyone. And I will miss those washing machines, toasters and electric sewing machines."

"It seems that everyone has everything. Only the rich have such things in England. But I won't say too much," she said with twinkling eyes. "I've got to go back and live there."

"They'll say: 'Don't be comin' back with that Yankee style...'"

Yes, Mrs. Boyd likes it here, but there's something about Birkenhead on the Mersey back in England.

"Coming to the Northwest has made me a bit homesick," she said. "It rains so nicely."

She daubed at her nose with her handkerchief and apologized for the flu... same as in England—"I've been sniffing for two days."

Mrs. Boyd said she would be leaving Oregon and her brother, Owen Donnelly, within a week to head back across country. She will board the Queen Elizabeth for home on about Feb. 22.

"After we land and ride up to Liverpool," she said nostalgically. "and then we'll catch the ferry over the Mersey to Birkenhead and I'll be home."

"They all joked about what I'd bring back. Butter, nylons or a man with money. Me comin' home a bride at 64!"

"But it won't be any of those things. Just a wonderful time and a memory of a dream come true."

It takes 11 pounds of coal to haul each ton of freight 100 miles.

UN GROUPS TO STUDY ALBANIA, OTHER ISSUES

U. S. Atom Control Policy Is Discussed With Other Delegates

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., Jan. 31—The security council and four United Nations commissioners are meeting today to consider international problems ranging from human rights and social aspects to charges against Albania on the Corfu channel mining incident.

At the same time, United States atomic control policy and its relationship to general disarmament is undergoing a thorough diplomatic canvassing through informal talks initiated by Warren R. Austin, principal American delegate.

Austin is planning to combine his conclusions from the talks into a general statement to the council next Tuesday and with that purpose in mind has been closely consulting with his American delegation advisors in New York. He will resume attendance of the council this afternoon.

The prospects of starting actual hearings on the Albanian case at 3 p. m. today are remote. There is some likelihood that the government of Premier Enver Hoxha will have given the specific date of arrival of its envoy but in any case another delay to at least next Monday is anticipated after a brief session.

In the meantime, the human rights commission under the chairmanship of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt is pushing forward in the slow and tedious task of accomplishing initial spadework for an international bill of rights. The heavy agenda facing that commission already has compelled a Saturday session.

The economic and social commissions as well as the statistical are busy formulating recommendations for the general meeting on Feb. 28 of the social and economic council.

United Nations officials, sizing up the international horizon are awaiting the appearance of several more controversial issues on the agenda of the security council. The United States is expected to present its claim to the strategic trusteeship of the former Jap-mandated islands, a problem sure to draw fire from Russia.

Egypt is preparing an appeal to the council against Britain on the contention that the 1936 treaty has been violated. Under this treaty, British troops occupy the Suez canal zone and the 1899 agreement gives Britain a share in the administration of the Sudan. Egypt will claim this treaty is now in contradiction to provisions under the United States charter.

DRIVER TELLS HOW HE GOT OUT OF DROWNED CAR

THE DALLES, Ore., Jan. 31—A cool-headed driver told today how he avoided drowning by staying in his submerged car after it had dived into eight feet of water in the Columbia river.

Phil L. Ryan of Seattle drove off a wharf into a ferry slip as the ferry pulled out. He tried to open the door, but the water pressure kept it shut.

Fighting back his panic, he stayed in the car five or six minutes until water seeping in had equalized the pressure and the water had risen to his neck.

Then he opened the door and shot to the surface before amazed onlookers, who pulled him out.

The mamme apple is the native name of a highly esteemed fruit of the West Indies and tropical America. It is grown on a tree 60 to 70 feet tall. The fruit is roundish from the size of a hen's egg to that of a large orange with a thick, leathery rind, and very delicate inner rind that must be carefully removed before the fruit is eaten on account of its bitter taste.

The organization claims 15,000 members throughout the United States.

The Denver group described the action as a nationwide "movement on the part of conscientious objectors and undeclared pacifists who now are ready to refuse to compromise any longer in any way with the war system."

ROYAL FAMILY STARTS TRIP TO SOUTH AFRICA

Bitter Cold Weather Forces Cancellation Of Parade At Sendorff Party

LONDON, Jan. 31—King George and Queen Elizabeth, accompanied by Princess Elizabeth and Princess Margaret Rose, leave London's Waterloo station today for Portsmouth on the first stage of their trip to South Africa.

Severe wintry weather and a heavy fall of snow blanketed London's grimy buildings at the departure of the royal party. It forced cancellation of the planned state parade, and relieved Londoners of the duty of standing in freezing cold to wave "bon voyage" to their king and queen.

However, some crowds were expected to gather despite the slush and bitter winds to bid farewell to the royal party.

Besides it being the first time the young princesses ever have gone outside Britain, the journey has taken on added interest for the British people. This stems from the general belief that the engagement of Princess Elizabeth to Prince Philip of Greece may be announced when the royal family returns to England in May.

The heiress to the throne will celebrate her 21st birthday while the royal party is in Capetown on April 21, a few days before the departure for England.

The king's brother and sister, the Duke of Gloucester and the Princess Royal, will travel with the royal party to Portsmouth.

The royal family embarks in the battleship Vanguard as soon as they arrive in Portsmouth this evening, and will sail tomorrow morning.

The Duke of Gloucester, recently returned from being governor-general of Australia, will carry out the king's duties during his absence, assisted by counsellors of state who will include the princess royal.

Extra clothing coupons have been granted to the queen and the two princesses by special order of the cabinet in order that they will have a suitable wardrobe for the tour. The king had personally supervised a good supply of wines and cigars for entertaining visitors aboard the Vanguard.

GIRL MAULED BY BEAR WANTS TO 'GET UP, PLAY'

BALTIMORE, Md., Jan. 31—Four-year-old Anna Louise Hastings, unaware her left leg has been amputated just below the knee, pleaded with the nurses at the University hospital today to "please let me get up and play."

The bright-eyed little girl who was mauled and bitten by a bear at nearby Pikeville, told her nurses that "I don't want to stay in bed any more."

But it will be many a day before her plea is answered, if ever. Physicians say the child's life still will be endangered for another two days until they know if she is safe from possible infection.

Then if she survives, little Anna must face another amputation. Her leg above the knee must be removed.

Anna was bitten by the seven-year-old bear, a pet, when she fell near the animal's cage.

She has received half a dozen or more transfusions and can be seen only by her doctors and nurses.

HOUSEWORK TO BE ELIMINATED IN THE FUTURE

CLEVELAND, Jan. 31—Milady may have a home someday where housework will be only a word in history books.

B. M. Woods, president of the American Society of Heating and Ventilating Engineers, told Cleveland Rotarians yesterday that such present-day gadgets, such as the vacuum cleaner and washer, were only partial solutions of the housework problem.

"Even the dishwashing machine leaves 50 per cent of the washing process to be done manually," Woods said.

The engineer predicted that home engineering in the future will be as productive as industrial engineering is today.

"Then we can say goodbye to housework."

NOT SO EASY AS IT LOOKS!

I have to laugh when I hear fellows who don't know a left-handed monkey wrench from a striped barber pole say, "Well, if I only had the tools, I could fix my own car."

Listen, folks—it takes a whole lot more than a pin box to make a good Medical Doctor—and it takes more than micrometers and wrenches to make a good Doctor of Motors!

It takes plenty on the ball—and plenty of "know-how." Now I know the Doctors of Motors in and around Cincinnati pretty well. I should... been doing business with them for 10 years. There's a good man in every first-class shop in these parts—and he's a good man to know these days. He'll meet you more than halfway every time. Give him that chance. Don't let little car troubles grow into a whole family of big ones.

STAKE IN KOREA

ANCIENT, cultured Korea is divided by two occupying forces, the Russians at the north, Americans in the south. She wants her freedom. It was promised at the Cairo Conference and at Yalta. Until the Japanese surrender in 1945, Korea had been an unwilling and exploited part of that Empire since 1910. Russia, despite her short participation in the Pacific war, moved immediately into Korea. Likewise this country's forces. Both were to "disarm the Japanese". Both were welcomed as liberators by Koreans.

Wide dissatisfactions developed. American forces were not trained for Korean occupancy, did not know the language. Complaints emphasized the fact that the Soviets were appropriating too much land and resources, particularly food. Nearly a million Koreans fled to the U. S. area. Crop failures aggravated the situation everywhere, as did accusations of both Japanese collaboration activities and the tyrannical influence of Communists. The American commander, Lieut. Gen. John R. Hodge, called an interim legislative advisory council meeting last December that was not too successful but seems to be a beginning of progress.

In the meantime American forces are not going to withdraw, as Russia patently hoped. The United States is committed to remain until Koreans have the right kind of democratic free government. Korea, heretofore vaguely distant country to Americans, will figure more and more in 1947's news and diplomatic reports. Thus are the frontiers of the once isolated United States pushed across the globe.

ALWAYS ANOTHER DOOR

A 62-year-old GI in Decatur, Ill., is back at the books. He started college at the University of Illinois in 1907. He went to work before he finished, enlisted in World War I, took up his job after the armistice. When World War II came he and his two sons donned their country's uniform. Now he's a junior at James Milliken University, studying engineering and intending to keep at it until he gets his degree.

Many people at 62 think of life as about done with them, or they with it. They can see no more stimulating or exciting prospects in the years that are left. The Decatur man looks at it differently. Keeping abreast of his younger classmates is doubtless strenuous at times, but it's never dull. Not all 60-year olds can go to school, but they can be learners. The kingdom of contentment is made of people inspired by that divine discontent which spurs them to keep on improving the mind.

The Army and Navy, we observe, are going to "unify their forces", but will keep separate chiefs "just in case." It's an old American custom to keep two strings to your bow.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31—It never ceases to be amazing to re-discover that the most intricate tragic-comic situations always seem to be cooked up unwittingly by the methodical minds of unfunny men.

Thus it is with "the battle of Morgenthau's diary." Regardless of who eventually gains total custody of that 900-volume record accumulated by the former secretary of the treasury during his public life, the damage has been done.

Hundreds of men about town are shaking with laughter at the plight of others who merely are shaking.

All of which must come as a distasteful surprise to Mr. Morgenthau—for if I learned one thing in those bygone days when certain sadistic editors banished me to the dismal gloom of the treasury beat, it was that the secretary was not a funny man.

Nor did he claim to be. Many citizens said he had no sense of humor at all. Others felt he probably had one but, like the undertaker with the garish crimson gift tie, kept it hidden in the closet as an improper thing to wear in public. Now neither thesis may be correct. But certainly when the ex-secretary disclosed he had depended heavily on the dictaphone for accurate detail in gathering that gargantuan diary, he had no intention of exploding the biggest practical joke of the month about the heads of startled capital officialdom.

Which is exactly what he did. . .

If there's one thing that strikes fear into the heart of the strongest politician or public figure it's a dictaphone—particularly in the office of a friend. . .

"It's not so much that they're afraid of Morgenthau," chortled a famous former bureau boss the other night at a public dinner. "After all, you can't imagine confiding your personal affairs or questionable political deals to old Henry. But you will tell some of your friends."

"And what he's done has suddenly made all the boys realize that there may be one of those blasted gadgets hooked on the

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31—The British are said to be the smartest diplomats in all the world, but that has not been said much lately.

The foreign minister, Mr. Bevin, has had a tussle with Pravda and/or Stalin the past few weeks which may cause some revisions of opinion on that subject. Mr. Bevin's rotund philosophy of foreign policy was being hard pressed at home by certain rowdies in the ranks of his socialist labor party who claimed he was too close to the United States. They wanted a more pro-Soviet or anti-American policy. So Mr. Bevin made a speech. He said Britain is not tying herself to anyone—just like that, not tying herself to anyone.

Imagine Mr. Bevin's chagrin and surprise when criticism of his remark came not from America, not even from his own rowdies, but from that great international mind which knows all, sees all, but does not tell very much—Pravda. Now Pravda said Bevin's remark renounced and repudiated the British mutual air pact with Russia. Mr. Bevin must have lost five pounds or more when he read that, for he did an unexpected if not unheard of thing. He wrote Stalin. He sent an official note denying the Pravda interpretation of his own remarks. He assured Stalin he had no such thing in mind, a plea which was not hard to believe because no one else thought so. He had not even been talking about being tied to Russia but answering complaints that he was tied to us.

It would require a British sense of humor to understand how Bevin could possibly have taken the Pravda accusation seriously. But he did in the note, saying his observation had been "lifted out of context" and "distorted," which indeed it had been—both.

Now do not go away, kiddies. Here the story just starts to become interesting. Pravda, which sees things no one in the entire world can see, came right back at the poor misunderstood (?) Mr. Bevin and said he was wrong in interpreting his own speech. Bevin did not know what he meant by his own remarks, said Pravda, and added: "this cannot be denied."

Well, Stalin denied it—the very same day (January 23.) Shades of Siberia! Spirit of forced labor in the salt mines! The editor of Pravda was refuted by Stalin. Gullible as I am, I immediately conjured visions of the whole staff of Pravda being invited by the O. G. P. U. to pack up suddenly and ask no questions because they were going somewhere. I know what trouble it is to dispute an editor in a democracy. But for a Pravda editor to dispute Stalin! The contemplation of such an event thrusts me into unutterable sadness.

Anyway, kiddies, the great and good Stalin answered Bevin's alarm, calmed his troubled mind, straightened out his misunderstood spirit, and said Bevin was right in his interpretation—that is, he was right if he changed some of the weakening reservations in the Anglo-Russian treaty. Or perhaps it is not entirely accurate to put it so obviously. What Stalin precisely said was that the weakening reservation should be changed presumably to bring Britain further into the Russian camp, and that Bevin was right, of course, in interpreting his own remarks. Stalin did not mention what reservations. Quite plainly he was dickering for some kind of better deal for himself.

When Tubes of the Lungs Are Dilated or Stretched

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

WHEN the bronchi or tubes of the lungs become dilated or stretched, there is a tendency for infection to occur with the result that secretions collect in the air passages. This condition, known as bronchiectasis, is especially likely to affect older people.

According to Dr. Arthur M. Olsen of the Mayo Clinic, the best treatment for this condition is surgical. For example, if the dilated bronchi are all in one lobe or section of the lung, an operation may be performed and this part of the lung removed.

Cannot Stand Operation
However, many patients who have bronchiectasis cannot receive surgical treatment. Elderly patients often do not withstand the lung operation very well. Furthermore, in many of them, the breathing is not normal, and others suffer from asthma which would make operation on the lung hazardous. Hence, these patients must be treated medically.

The medical treatment for bronchiectasis consists, first of all, of measures to improve the patient's general health and nutrition; second, measures to aid in getting rid of the secretions in the lung; and, third, efforts to overcome infection which is present.

In building up the patient's general health, of course, plenty of good food, rest, sunlight and ultraviolet ray treatments are helpful. These patients do best in a warm, dry climate. The patient with bronchiectasis is wise not to smoke.

Various Preparations

In helping to get rid of the secretions, various preparations may be given which will thin out the thick material. These include iodides and ammonium chloride. The breathing in of steam from a steam kettle may also be helpful. A method known as postural drainage may also be employed. This is done by having the patient lie for from 15 to 30 minutes with his head lower than his hips, such as over the edge of a bed.

The breathing in of a solution of penicillin in the form of a spray would appear to be the best method for getting rid of infection. Dr. Olsen has found that such treatment produces a great reduction in the amount of sputum in about half of the cases. He has also tried a mixture of penicillin and streptomycin and has found that this, also, gives excellent results. This type of treatment may also be carried out before operation on the lungs in those cases where it is found practical.

These new measures of treatment are a great boon to the patient with bronchiectasis for whom little relief was possible in earlier days.

SYNOPSIS

Cliff Bogard risks his capital by accepting the U. S. Rubber Division's dangerous assignment to open up virgin rubber plantations in New Dixie, South America, a kind of feudal colony which had been founded by Americans before the Civil War. When its present head, domineering, old Claribel Florian, refused Cliff an option, fearing it would stir up trouble with the Blacklanders, a group of rebellious natives, Washington had sent down attractive Janet Norman to straighten things out. Janet knew the territory, having been brought up there by her late father, beloved doctor of the community, whose death had occurred during a recent flood. Janet had her own reason for coming back, and it was sufficient important to have caused her to forge the credentials she presented to Cliff. En route to New Dixie from the coast, their plane is forced down near the jungle home of the Blacklanders. Wade, a hunter of wild animals, Wade disclosed that no one knows the identity of the Blacklanders' new leader, whom the New Dixie vaqueros have sworn to capture, together with Vicente, his lieutenant. Lill, attractive young native girl, had adopted when her parents died. Just as Cliff was about to acquiesce, word arrives that Vicente and his gang have burned Cliff's warehouse. Angered that they did not inform her the culprit was in the neighborhood, Claribel dispatches a messenger to the range for Madison, an order for Cliff and Janet to leave immediately.

CHAPTER TEN

TURNING ON his heel, Cliff walked to the window. Down in the village the bell still tolled its warning; crowds had gathered in the streets, and at the far end of the pasture men were frantically saddling horses. His coming had brought all this about, but it ceased to concern him now—he no longer shared any part of it. He was done—and for the first time in his life he knew the frustration of defeat.

A low sigh beside him recalled Janet, and at thought of her he felt his anger revive. Somberly he regarded her. The morning sun was kindling a thousand points of fire in her bronze hair, but her face was pale, and the dark eyes shadowed with pain. She was like a child punished without knowing why, and even in his resentment Cliff felt a wave of sympathy for her—whatever her motive had been, she too was facing the shattered wreckage of her hopes.

She looked up at him. "What are we going to do now?" she whispered. "What can we do?" "We're going to pack." In the quiet room his voice sounded sharper than he intended. "Why don't you face it? You're through." "Through." Blankly she echoed the word, then in the next breath blazed at him in a flare of unhappy anger. "And you're glad I'm through? Why don't you say it? You're glad. You wanted me to fail from the very start. You wanted to believe that no woman on earth knew enough to help you."

"You haven't done much to change my mind." She raised both hands to her lips. "I never want to see you—!" She started for the door, but his own hand closed on her arm. "Wait!" He held her in her tracks, while she looked at him out of eyes bright with tears but too startled even for resentment. "Quarreling won't get us anywhere," he said slowly. "What about this Madison? Who is he?" "Claribel's nephew. Let go of my arm."

Cliff's hand dropped to his side. "Where does he fit in?" "He manages everything for Claribel—especially the herds of cattle. He's head of the vaqueros." "He seems to be a trained seal where you're concerned. From what our charming hostess just said, you have plenty of influence with him."

She frowned. "What about it? He isn't here."

"But you heard her send a rider to bring him in. You must know someone who will get word to Madison that you're down at Wade's."

"He couldn't possibly arrive before the plane leaves."

"It's worth a chance, isn't it? What have we got to lose? He half pushed her toward the door. "Try it. And if the old steam-roller comes back, I'll delay things."

Hope—even the faint hope that lay in his words—brought a touch of color to Janet's cheeks. She ran from the room, and Cliff watched her hurry down the path. Long odds, but he was used to long odds. A few minutes later Claribel stamped in. "You still here?" she snapped.

"Still here, darling." They eyed each other as two fencers might. There was a directness and vitality about her that, in spite of his anger, gave Cliff a sense of kinship with the high-handed old matriarch. At least he could understand her; she wasn't withdrawn and unpredictable like Janet Norman. She was a dragon, but she was consistent, and he could easily have liked her if things had been different.

Cliff decided to make one last effort. "When I rode up to this house yesterday," his slow voice drawled, "the first thing I saw was the American flag. That gave me a big thrill. I had a feeling that whoever flew that flag would be glad to help the U. S. A."

"Still talking about rubber, are you?" Claribel began gathering up the papers on her desk. "I am. So is the whole world. Just now, rubber is almost as important as food, especially the high-grade stuff on your New Dixie plantations. I wonder if you know the importance of the thing you're blocking. Back in Washington there are men who want to make this continent self-sufficient in rubber so that no other nation can ever put the squeeze on us and bring us to our knees as they did during the war. I came here to help them do that. It was my chance to do something really big for my country. And when I saw that flag outside your house, I thought I could count on your help."

Claribel lifted a stubby hand. "Before we all join in singing the National Anthem, let me remind you that I'm responsible for what happens here—not you. Under other circumstances I would have let you take all the rubber you wanted, but today the Blacklanders have a leader who has already done away with some of our vaqueros, and I'll take no chances of starting a general feud with them."

"Then why don't you haul down that American flag and hoist a white one? You make me ashamed—an American woman bluffed by a handful of bandits."

He expected the blue eyes to glisten, but instead she gave a throaty chuckle. "You wouldn't be trying to rile an old lady into changing her mind, would you, Bogard? It's your kind that stir up most of the world's troubles."

"I'd hate to spend my life dodging trouble."

"From all I've heard, you spend it looking for trouble—and I must say you're in good company."

"You mean Miss Norman?"

"Who else? That girl's a menace."

Cliff laughed. "She's a rabbit if I ever saw one."

"This time Claribel's blue eyes snapped. "As a judge of human nature, you're not better than most men. Janet Norman is a thoroughly cold-blooded, calculating mix—just the kind you men go off the deep end for. Madison's been perfectly ridiculous about her for years—and she encouraged him. When she went back to the States, she got him to follow her, and when I told her I'd cut him off without a penny if he married her, she dropped him like a hot potato and sent him back. That's the kind of rabbit she is. Not that it ever did a man any good to warn him about a woman."

With a gesture of finality the old lady pointed out the window. "Those two horses are waiting for you and your little bunny. Also, there's a man ready to guide you to the plane, so begin packing."

Cliff started up the stairs—he had gained a little time, and every minute might count. "Do you mind if I take a look at the warehouse on the way down?" he called to her. "I'd like to see if Vicente left anything worth salvaging."

"Why not? The lower trail passes it—and the sooner you get going, the better."

Cliff had just finished throwing his belongings into a bag when Janet came running upstairs, breathless with exertion.

"A friend of Father's promised to give Madison my message," she whispered to Cliff. "Is there anything else I can do?"

"Nothing." He snapped the suitcase closed. "From now on we fight a delaying action and pray that your boy friend shows up."

"He's not my—!" she began angrily, then broke off as she saw his slow smile. "I suppose Claribel told you that."

"She intimated that you were quite a siren." He picked up the suitcase. "Hurry."

SCALLOPED OYSTERS

Scalloped oysters make an excellent main dish, full of nutrients.

BY BETTY NEWTON

The use of the oyster as food dates back to Indian days in America when a young Indian brave was lying on the shore of Delaware Bay. He was attracted to a small, peculiar-looking object which looked like a stone, but which seemed to be in halves. He reached for it, but howled in dismay—for it suddenly closed, imprisoning his finger. He struck it with his tomahawk and released his finger. Sticking his finger in his mouth to relieve the pain, he discovered a delicious flavor. Oysters have been enjoyed ever since, or, so the story goes.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

IS ENOUGH AT STAKE?
SOME HANDS are not good enough for a sacrifice bid at the range of four, but justify a bid at the level of six or seven. That apparent paradox is logical because of a very simple fact. If the opponents have bid to only a game, the loss through the sacrifice might cost more points than the adverse game. But if they have bid a slam—or have exchanged information that make a slam contract by them a practical certainty—then so much is at stake that heavy punishment of your sacrifice would cost you less than you already stand to lose.

3NT	Pass	4NT	Pass
5♣	6♣	Dbl

Notice that South did not consider he had enough to bid 1-Diamond over 1-Club, nor yet enough playing tricks to try a sacrifice at 4-Diamonds over 3-No Trumps. Yet he considered he had enough to try 6-Diamonds after having passed at the levels of one and four. It was entirely because he felt—after East's 5-Hearts, showing two aces in response to the Blackwood 4-No Trumps—that the opponents were headed for a slam bid, either small or grand, as they were.

A small slam contract would have given the opponents around 1,000 points and a grand slam around fifty per cent more than that. South reckoned that a few dregs in his partner's hand might limit his losses to about five down for a score of 900 or perhaps only four down for 700.

As it developed, the opponents could have scored a grand slam in either No Trumps or clubs. South in his 5-Diamonds doubled lost one trick in spades, three in hearts, one in diamonds and one in clubs, a total of six, so was down five for a score of 900. This made quite a saving against what could have been lost if he had not bid.

its demonstrations, it costs a sizeable chunk, $795. The biggest, a mahogany set about the size of a small apartment, retails at $4,500.

CBS had the floor the entire day Monday to give the FCC a visual demonstration of its color television system, while the moving hand of history took notes. It was the first video performance in an American courtroom.

Tuesday's hearing gave Du Mont a chance to present its case against the CBS petition, and to demonstrate black and white television alongside CBS' color. FCC chairman Charles Denny and the other commissioners left the dais to join the crowd of television presidents, scientists and attorneys to view the demonstration.

A few of the spectators who were granted entry to the hearing brought field glasses along to get a closer view of the screens.

CBS cameras were focused on an attractive young lady in a fetching red costume and green shawl, who danced gracefully to the tempo of a waltz and then whirled to a Latin-American rhythm.

Minus shawl and equipped with a pair of boxing gloves, the blonde model fought a furious battle with an imaginary opponent. The purpose of her various activities was to demonstrate how well color reception would be when performers moved at different speeds.

Color television is not unlike the appearance of technicolor movies. Yesterday, the commission left the courtroom to its dignity and visited the RACA laboratories in Princeton, N. J., for demonstrations there of RCA's simultaneous color transmission. RCA is opposing the CBS petition, too, on the grounds more time is needed before commercial standards are set up for color television.

Most of the hearing dealt with technicalities far above the poor comprehension of the unscientific. It was clearly evident, however, that every time CBS said yes, color television is practical now, the others rose to the contrary.

FCC, although finished with this set of hearings and with a voluminous document of testimony presented last December, is not ready yet to make a decision. There are to be final arguments heard in Washington on February 10.

BY RUBY JUSTER

NEW YORK, Jan. 31—Television set owners, still only a few out of the total United States population, watched with curiosity this week the imposing U. S. courthouse in New York.

In room 1703, usually garbed in the decorum of justice, CBS and Du Mont set up their television equipment to show the federal communications commission whether or not color television is ready for commercial use now.

Giant antennas, looking like giant black weather vanes, flanked the long judge's bench, and polished cabinet model receiving sets practically obliterated the bar of justice.

Incidentally, if you'd like to buy the smallest set Du Mont used in

$5,000 as compared with $2,800 a year ago. Coin boxes placed in public buildings, offices and stores throughout the city and county must be collected and the donations counted, Henkle explained, to determine the amount dropped into the receptacles.

The campaign is part of a nation-wide anti-polio drive under auspices of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. The national goal was 24 million dollars.

Edward Amey is chairman of the campaign group in Circleville, and Mrs. Harriet Henness heads the "March of Dimes" volunteer campaigners in the remainder of the county.
